Last of Strikers Agree To Return To Army-Seized Factory In West.

CLEVELAND —(INS)— While unionists and company officials awaited a mass meeting set for this afternoon, a spokesman for the struck Aluminum Company of America today said "we hope to get into production as soon as possible." There were indications that production might be resumed tonight.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The defense mediation board today characterized the strike at the Bohn Aluminum and Brass corporation Detroit plants as "a serious threat" to the country and called on both sides to agree duction.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Eleven of the nation's huge aluminum plants today remain idle due to CIO strikes as defense officials warned that the disputes threaten shutdown of 90 per cent of all the airplane, tank and gun production in the country.

It appeared that President Roosevelt's renewed declaration that he would order the army to seize strike-bound defense plants if necessary had forced settlement of the disputes, but last minute developments brought continuance of the strikes.

Failure of CIO union officials to lay terms before workers for settling the dispute that closed five Cleveland plants of the Aluminum Corporation of America threw a monkey wrench in the government's plans to immediately resume production of the vital metal there.

Meanwhile, the CIO auto workers union voted to return to work in six plants of the Bohn Aluminum company in Detroit if they were assured that their demands for a 10 cent an hour wage increase would be retroactive to

'Uncle Dan' Beard, Founder of Scouts In America, Dies

"Uncle Dan," as he was affectionately known by millions of Boy Scouts, would have been 91 years old on June 21. He had been ill since April 20 when he contracted a cold at his 14-acre estate here.

The venerable scouter and naturalist, loved the world over by men who used to be boys and by the boys themselves, died in his quiet rustic woodland home, "The Brooklands."

His daughter, Mrs. Barbara Price, was at his bedside. Death resulted from a heart condition which followed the cold and which was complicated by old age.

"Uncle Dan" was chief to 1,400,000 Boy Scouts of America which he helped Ernest Thomp-

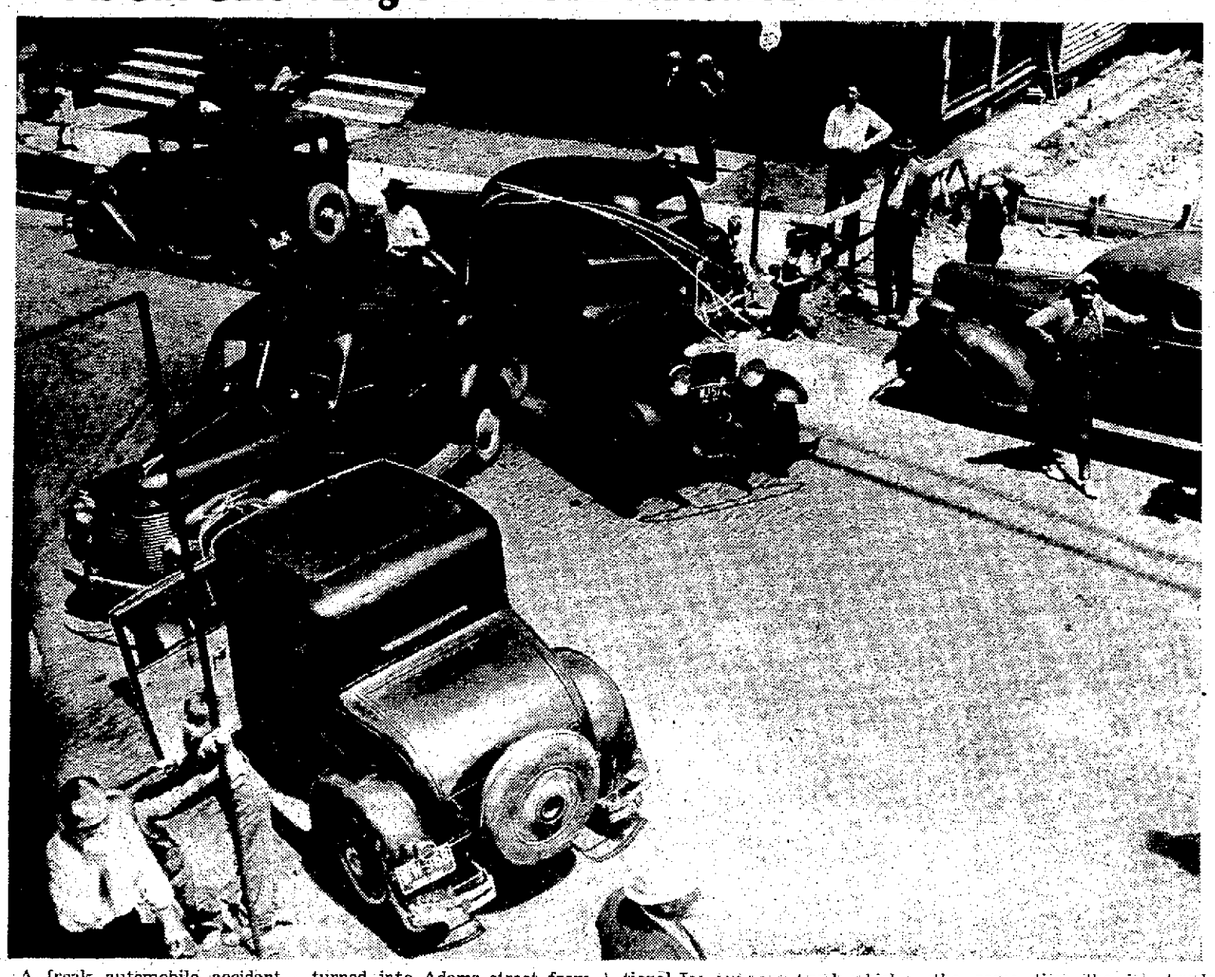
VOTE ON RAISE

Employes of Toledo Firm to Get Wage Boost Proposal.

TOLEDO—(INS)—Pay raises and other benefits for 2,200 employes of the Spicer Manufacturing company, reached after a series of conferences between CIO and company agents, will be submitted to an employe vote tonight.

CIO employes at the plant had authorized a strike in a vote taken May 26 and 27, but negotiations between United Auto Workers' representatives and company officials resulted in the requested salary adjustments. The company makes parts for reconnaissance cars and tanks.

As Six Cars Tangle In Freak Automobile Accident Here



A freak automobile accident resulted in damage to six automobiles yesterday afternoon on North Adams street. Police said the six-car collision started when Harry Farber of Galion turned into Adams street from Park avenue east, on the wrong side of the street. The car hit another driven by Fred Baldauf of Marion. Baldauf's auto was pitched backward into a National Ice company truck which spun it sideway into the street where it hit an automobile driven by George Aldridge, 304 Miller street, which was pushed into a car owned by Vernon D. Greenwalt, Shiloh R. D. 2. At the same time the ice truck continued back, finaly smashing the left hand bumper and head light of a car belonging to Rosella Lafferty, 129 Park avenue east. None of the cars was damaged badly.

THROWN FROM WAGON, KILLED

Holmes County Farmer Fatally Injured When Horses Run Away; 4 Leap to Safety.

MILLERSBURG — Andrew Schlabach rode to his death yesterday after his wife and three children had leaped to safety from the springboard wagon in which the family was driving here from their home three miles north of Millersburg.

The 46-year-old farmer held onto the reins as his horse became frightened and started to run away when the harness broke. His wife and two daughters and son leaped from the careening wagon.

Schlabach was hurled from the vehicle and struck his head on a stone. He sustained a fractured skull. Taken to Pomerene hospital, Millersburg, he died there a few hours later.

The family was on the way to Millersburg to market strawberries when the accident occurred.

Surviving besides the widow are four daughters, two sons, and the father, Samuel Schlabach.

Funeral services will be held Friday at 9 a. m. from the residence.

Relatives Here Fear For Lives of Three

Mansfielders Await Word Concerning Fate of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. McCullough Feared Lost on Sunken Ship.

Mansfield relatives today anxiously awaited word concerning the fate of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. McCullough and their two-year-old son, Robert, feared lost aboard the American merchantman Robin Moor sunk in the South Atlantic May 21.

McCullough and his wife, Veronica, 25, and their son visited in Mansfield three days before the ship sailed from New York.

He is the nephew of Dwight McCullough, 18 Helen avenue, and a grand-nephew of Mrs. G. W. Uhlich, 497 Parkview street.

Mr. McCullough, who has been associated with the Firestone Rubber company of South Africa for the past three years, spent his childhood in Bellville with his grandmother, Mrs. Cora Miller. McCullough attended Bellville schools.

He had been in the United States for three months visiting his mother, Mrs. R. M. Griswold, in Cleveland. During those months he had been in Mansfield and Bellville for short visits.

Other relatives of Mr. McCullough, who formerly lived in Bellville, but now reside in Cleveland, are Mrs. Naomi Laird, mabel Miller and Floyd Miller.

Eleven survivors of the Robin Moor arrived in Pernambuco, Brazil, yesterday with the first details of the ship's loss almost 1,000 miles out in the south Atlantic. They were picked up by the Brazillian steamer Osoroio.

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — The state supreme court today refused to hear arguments in the appeal by J. Z. Brady from Cuyahoga county court decisions finding his guilty on charges of bribing a city employe in connection with the sale of coal to the City of Cleveland in 1934-35.

Brady was indicted with Dickinson H. Snetsinger on charges of giving bribes totaling approximately $3,900 to influence awarding of coal contracts.

NEW CANDIDATE SEEN FOR DEMS

Bushnell, Former Postmaster, Reported Preparing to File For Mayor.

Fred M. Bushnell, former Mansfield postmaster came to the front as a new possible Democratic candidate for mayor today as party leaders watched the filing deadline draw nearer and extended their efforts to find a candidate to head the municipal ticket at the August primary.

Former Sheriff E. P. Long, mentioned frequently as a Democratic mayoralty candidate in the past week, maintained his silence on his plans. It was believed, however, that he may announce soon.

John C. O'Donnell, county Democratic executive chairman, said he had no comment to make on the possible candidates for mayor, adding, however, that "the ticket will be full by the filing deadline."

Meanwhile, Republicans announced today that they would have at least one candidate for every post except for council in the Fifth ward where Fred Miller, veteran Democratic councilman, has announced he will seek re-election.

Householders Urged to Buy Coal Now as Aid to Defense

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Already confronted by threatened restrictions on gasoline, heating oil and electric power, householders over the nation were admonished today to "buy coal now" lest they face a shortage of this fuel also next winter.

Foreseeing a "very grave danger" of a deficiency due to the defense strain on transportation facilities, a government statement last night urged summer buying and coal "as a direct and substantial aid to national defense."

"If consumers do not buy now they may be in trouble later," said Paul Sifton, acting director of the consumers counsel, federal agency set-up to protect bituminous coal users.

Meanwhile, Secretary of Interior Ickes bluntly announced that people of the Eastern seaboard, "will have to get along with less gasoline for their cars and probably less oil to heat their homes." Ickes is defense petroleum administrator.

The oil shortage is threatened by transfer to British service of tanker ships normally used to move petroleum from the gulf ports to the east.

"All of us," Ickes said, "can save on the gasoline that we consume in our automobiles, 1. by reducing our driving speeds, 2. by refraining from non-essential driving, 3. by less hasty getaways in city traffic, and 4. by adjusting our cars for maximum fuel efficiency so that no gasoline will be belched through the exhaust pipe."

The plea for immediate buying of coal was issued by the consumers counsel, with endorsement of the offices of production management.

WESTINGHOUSE PUTS $500,000 MORE IN PLANT

Company to Build 2 Additions, Buys 23 Properties for More Land Near Factory.

BUYS NEW EQUIPMENT

New Expansion Program to Be Started at Once as Defense Increases Operations.

A $500,000 expansion program at the Mansfield Westinghouse plant, supplementing a $1,500,000 program just completed, was announced today by C. L. VanDerau, works manager at the plant.

Included in the new project will be the construction of a $240,000 addition to the company's vitreous enameling plant, a $75,000 addition to the Westinghouse "G" building between Fourth and Fifth streets, installation of additional equipment costing $26,000 in the enameling plant, and purchase of 23 properties for a $140,000 parking lot near the plant.

With production and employment at the Mansfield plant at an all-time high, company officials said more floor space and production facilities were needed at once to meet the demands on the plant here. Work will start immediately on the project, officials said.

Production stimulated by the defense program and generally improving business conditions have boosted the plant's employment to 4,963 persons, an increase of 250 in the past eight weeks and highest in the plant's history in Mansfield.

The proposed additions to the enameling plant and "G" building will provide 76,000 square feet more of floor space, bringing the total for the Mansfield plant to 1,332,900, approximately 13½ times the area of the original plant opened here in 1918.

A huge new warehouse, located just east of the company's office building facing East Fourth street, has just been completed. It was

MOTHER SLAIN

Self-Styled 'Charley Chan' Is Charged With Murder.

NEW YORK —(AP)— A handyman who dubbed himself "Charlie Chan" because of his resemblance to the movie character was charged today with slaying a young mother with a butcher's cleaver, stuffing her body into a trunk and tossing it into a thicket in an isolated part of Staten Island.

Booked as Pietro Picatello, 46, on a homicide charge in the killing of Mrs. Rose Siegel, 23, the squat broad-shouldered man was arrested last night in his lower East Side apartment where Assistant District Attorney Rosenblum said he admitted the crime.

Picatello, who had been friendly with Mrs. Siegel, mother of a 3-year-old son and who had been expecting another child, said he struck her at the base of the neck with the cleaver the morning of May 31 after an armgument.

Some French Forces Resist Advance, Others Join British; Aussies Move on Beirut Capture Fortress of Khayam.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(INS)—German troops now are assisting French forces in offering stiff resistance to British and Free French forces at a point four kilometers (2½ miles) from Damascus, a French source in London said today. Favorable progress was reported generally.

By KENNETH DOWNS
(INS Staff Correspondent)

WITH THE IMPERIAL FORCES IN SYRIA—(Via Jerusalem, Wednesday, 6 a. m.)—Damascus lies just ahead as the British and Free French forces in Syria await the order to resume their advance.

Less than 15 miles separate the advance hosts of the imperial forces at Kiswe from the fabulous Damascus of song and story.

The troops which launched the penetration of Syria before dawn last Sunday are hoping soon to enter the city which paid tribute to David and Solomon and boasts a longer continuous history than any other in the world.

British empire and Indian regiments make up the column which now is knocking at the door of Damascus. They came straight across the desert from Transjordania, while the Australians sent two columns up the coast toward Beirut and over the hills in the direction of Rayak from Palestine. Meanwhile, a Free French column penetrated to their right.

In most places, the advance has been rapid and comparatively easy. But stiff resistance was offered at one or two points, especially in the region of Merj Ayoum where Australian artillerists were forced to batter down one bastion at a time.

I watched some French elements resisting stubbornly — and some getting through the lines to join up with the British.

I saw others cautiously withdrawing after offering nominal resistance, still apparently in the painful throes of indecision.

What strikes you as you travel along the colorful battle fronts is the extent of the elaborate preparations recently made for the defense of Syria.

There are freshly dug tank traps of the sort I saw so often in Lorraine in 1939-40. Stone and concrete pillboxes are everywhere, at

NEGOTIATIONS BROKEN OFF

Japan Orders Delegation To End Talks With Dutch East Indies.

(By Associated Press)

TOKYO—(U.P.)—The government today ordered its economic delegation at Batavia to break off economic negotiations with the Netherlands East Indies.

The decision to wtihdraw the delegation was taken after a four-hour discussion by high government officials about the status of the negotiations with the Dutch.

It was understood that instructions will be drafted for dispatch to Kenkichi Yoshizawa, chief Japanese delegate at Batavia, informing him of the decision.

The nature of the instructions to Yoshizawa will be made public later.

It was understood that a course of action to follow Yoshizawa's withdrawal has been discussed in all aspects but there was no revelation as to what Japan will do.

"Further action," it was said, will be held in abeyance in the hope that the Netherlands officials might reconsider.

RAIN THREATENS PEONY FESTIVAL

Visitors Throng Streets of Van Wert for Event.

VAN WERT —(AP)— An early morning rain and cloudy skies threatened to reduce sharply the anticipated 100,000 attendance for Van Wert's colorful peony festival today.

Thousands of visitors, however, thronged the city for a parade of 50 bands, 40 flower-bedecked floats and 35 Legion color units and to see Mrs. John W. Bricker, Ohio's first woman, crown Genevieve Wendel queen of the jubilee.

ZINC ON LIST

Placed Under Priority Control With Aluminum Scrap.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Zinc and all aluminum scrap today were placed under full priority control by the OPM with an announcement that the nation, now in the midst of its national defense program, faces a shortage of between 215,000 to 275,000 tons of zinc in 1941.

It also was announced that "in the light of the overall shortage of zinc, civilian uses for the metal will have to be substantially curtailed." Zinc has many uses in both civilian and military channels, including galvanizing, brass making, die casting, and rolled zinc.

In explaining how this might affect civilian uses, defense officials said that in the future it may be difficult or almost impossible for private consumers to obtain galvanized roofing, sheeting or fence.

Seeks to Have City's Guard Unit Organized Within Week

Organization of the Mansfield unit of the newly-formed state guard—to be known as Company F—got underway today, with Capt. Glenn L. Bierly announcing that he hoped to be able to muster in the company within a week.

Capt. Bierly said that within a few hours of the announcement that Mansfield would have a company in the new state guard, he had received a number of telephone calls, anouncing the intention of the callers to enlist in it.

Enlistment is open, under the law, to all between the ages of 18 and 64. Physical examinations must be undergone, and Capt. Bierly said he hoped to have that phase of the organization handled by the same doctors who do the examining for the county's three draft boards.

Also announced today was the third officer of the company, Robert B. Schoenman, 315 West Fifth street, as second lieutenant. First Lieutenant is Hollis D. Moorhead.

Lieut. Schoenman is a former member of Battery D, Mansfield's National Guard unit, with which he served three years. He also served three years with the Third Field Artillery of the regular army and was a member of the Georgia National Guard for four years.

Capt. Bierly said application for enlistment may be made through hill tops, road bridges, in wheat fields and olive groves, all skillfully arranged for enfilade fire.

I watched the Australians capture one of their strongest forts before noon. It was Fort Khayam, one of the key defenses in the perimeter of the key town of Merj Ayoum.

We went ahead of the Allied artillery positions just after dawn and clambered up a high, rocky hill looking across a valley toward the fortress, which stood atop a similar hill 5,000 yards to the north.

Through field glasses the fortress was visible in clear detail. It looked like a Hollywood Beau Geste from the outside, but inside we knew it was well equipped with modern guns and mortars.

At 8:30 in the morning it presented as peaceful a scene as one could wish.

Then we saw tanks go into action, in the distance looking like a string of monstrous, angry beetles. Furious machinegun fire filled the air, punctuated by the deadly, dull reports of mortars fired by both the defenders and the attacking Aussies.

The tanks never stopped and by 10:30 a. m. the important fort was taken.

Meantime there was no let-up as another column of Australian infantry advanced along a ridge to the left of the village, which was heavily defended by Algerian machine gunners hidden in olive groves.

It was here that on the previous morning a truce had been attempted.

The opposing forces were 200 yards apart when a courageous Free French captain stepped into the open carrying a white flag.

The Aussies could clearly hear yells from the other side:

"Who's that unnameable with the white flag? Shoot him!"

An enemy officer apparently restrained the men, but before the Free French advanced 100 yards a volley rang out and the Frenchman fell halfway between the opposing lines.

He managed to crawl behind a tree and lay there through almost continuous fire.

That night two young Australian volunteers crept out and dragged him back. He had been wounded in seven places but was still alive.

Late in the day I swung over to a sector where a crack British imperial regiment advanced through Kuneitra toward Damascus.

Except for two points which they quickly took with an enveloping movement, they met only slight resistance.

Here again an attempt was made to negotiate a truce. A Free French delegate conferred over glasses of beer for five hours with a representative of Gen. Henri Dentz, the French high commissioner for Syria.

The negotiations broke down, the two negotiators finished their beer, and the British attacked and took the town.

Meanwhile, very little air activity has been seen so far.

Dashing along bomb-pitted roads, the Allied mechanized columns were ready for the first real test of the Syrian campaign, a test anticipated when the attempt to capture the two key cities is launched.

British officers are confident that all opposition will be smashed and that Damascus and Beirut will fall in a matter of hours.

Already, it was learned, the detachments advancing against Damascus are within 10 miles of the gates of that age-old city and have almost reached the orchards surrounding its outskirts.

(Editor's note: Official quarters in London said they had no authentic confirmation of publish reports that the Allies already have captured Damascus and Beirut.

(At Cairo, however, it was confirmed that British troops landed on the Syria coast from naval vessels simultaneously with the Allied entry into Syria from Palestine and Transjordania. The coastal landings were believed to have been carried out to protect key bridges, one of which subsequently was blown up by French forces.)

British Blast Docks On French Coast

LONDON — (UP) — British planes heavily raided docks and anchorages at Brest, on the French invasion coast, during the night in an attempt to do further damage to the German 26,000-ton battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau and to cripple a German cruiser of the Admiral Hipper class which was believed to be refuging there.

The air ministry reported that "a large weight of bombs" was dropped on the docks and anchorages at Brest.

It was reported in navy quarters that the cruiser was the new Prinz Eugen, 10,000 tons, which escaped the British fleet when the German battleship Bismarck was sunk some 400 miles off Brest May 27.

It was understood that the raid was of first importance and that big bombs, possibly including the super-bombs which had done so much damage to Hamburg and other German targets, were dropped on docks and anchorages throughout the area where the German ships had taken shelter.

Report Nazis Mass For Syria Drive

LONDON — (INS) — German troops were reported massing in ever-increasing numbers in Bulgaria today for a drive upon Syria.

(Editor's Note: Turkey, neutral thus far in the war, lies by land between Bulgaria and Syria. Air-borne German troops, however, could be carried by land or water to the Middle East. A broadcast by the Free French radio station at Beirut on Monday reported that 140 Nazi parachutists had been captured in Syria.)

STRIKES KEEP 11 ALUMINUM PLANTS TIED UP

90 Per Cent of Plane, Tank and Gun Production Now Threatened.

The national defense mediation board announced settlement of the Cleveland strike last night and Alex Balint, regional director for the CIO's National Association of Die Casters workers, flew back to the strike scene with the terms for a mass meeting of the 4,500 workers.

Instead of presenting the terms, however, he told the workers that "despite rumors to the contrary our negotiators in Washington have not come to a complete understanding with federal mediators. Our strike continues." Balint, who had forecast quick approval of the plan, told the workers to continue their picket duty today.

The mediation board awaits results of another union meeting called for today before taking further action in the Cleveland dispute.

While the war department warned that the strikes will bring plane production to a "dead halt," a survey by defense officials revealed that the situation is far more serious because of the fact that 90 per cent of defense production is dependent on aluminum parts in some form or other.

The board's announcement that the strike had been settled came after CIO President Philip Murray dramatically entered negotiations between union and company officials. The board, to which the dispute over wage demands had been certified, had washed hands off the case until the union made some effort to get the men back to work.

Terms reached by the board include a general one-cent per hour pay raise to workers in all plants involved, placing them on a parity with the company's employes in other plants at New Kensington, Pa., with a 73 cent an hour minimum wage.

In addition increases of three cents per hour to all second-shift workers, and five cents an hour to all third-shift workers were granted with exception of a small minority of "continuous process" workers. On other points, the company's regular agreement with other CIO unions was specified to take effect.

The board called a hearing for next Monday of union and company officials of the Bohn company in an attempt to iron out that dispute.

The American aluminum firm holds $60,000,000 worth of government orders, the Bohn concern $25,000,000 worth.

Defense officials are also troubled by other strikes throughout the country, including the walkout of CIO and AFL machinists in shipyards in the San Francisco Bay area and a strike of loggers in 52 lumber camps in the state of Washington. Also threatened is a strike at the big Consolidated Aircraft corporation plant at San Diego, Cal., which has $700,000,000 in plane orders. The tugboat strike in Baltimore harbor apparently neared settlement terms when a government mediator offered to help settle the dispute.

News that the last of the CIO strikers in the army-seized plant of the North American Aviation plant had agreed to go back to work in a body helped brighten the labor picture. The North American plant holds $200,000,000 worth of U. S. and British plane order.

The government from President Roosevelt on down, is determined that defense strikes be halted once and for all. Mr. Roosevelt, at a press conference, warned all defense labor and war industry that the army will seize strike-bound plants where the walkouts interfere with the defense program.

Other government agencies and the house committee investigating un-American activities meanwhile pushed investigations to determine whether Communist or Nazi groups were active in the strikes.

Strikers Return to Aviation Plant

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — (U.P.) — Striking CIO workers who had refused to return to work in the army controlled plant of the North American Aviation company yesterday, went back to work today under the urging of their leaders.

Most of the "holdout" strikers —those who stood fast when thousands of their fellow workers went back to their jobs yesterday—returned to work last night but when three of their leaders were stripped of their work badges, relieved of their tools and "suspended" from the plant a mass meeting of protest was called.

The meeting was called for 5 a. m. for dayshift workers due to pass through the gates of the big plant, where army bombers and trainers are made, at 7 a. m. About 600 men and four truckloads of soldiers, the latter acting as observers, attended.

The strikers were in an angry mood after hearing their representatives tell how company police took them in charge when they returned to the plant last night, but other leaders persuaded them to control their resentment.

After five or six men had spoken the meeting broke up and the workers made a dash for the factory, six miles away. They returned as individuals and not in a marching unit, as had been planned.

Lieut.-Col. Charles Steinmetz later said about 95 per cent of a normal day force of 7,000 men had reported.

Ex-Kaiser Goes to Tomb

The military trappings of the defunct German empire glitter once more as the body of the former German kaiser, Wilhelm II, is taken from a tiny chapel at Doorn, Holland, to his tomb. Also in the picture are the widow, Princess Hermine, and Prince August Wilhelm of Prussia, who wears the spiked helmet of the old imperial days.

GUARD WRECK

Soldiers Watch Downed Plane Where Six Lost Lives.

LYMAN, Wyo. —(AP) —Soldiers stood guard today over the wreckage of a twin-motored army bomber which nosed into a brush-covered hillside 10 miles east of this frontier town.

Convoys of army trucks converged on the scene where six air corps fliers lost their lives during a howling June snowstorm. The entire wreckage will be salvaged, officers reported, because the tons of twisted meteal is valuable.

Bodies of the fliers were hauled away in army ambulances yesterday mangled almost beyond recognition and hurtled into the nose as the bomber plunged earthward. The victims were taken to the air base at Salt Lake City. Army officials ordered an investigation.

of no one who planned to file in that ward and they would make no effort to find a candidate. The ward is heavily Democratic.

Bushnell has been interested in running for several weeks, it was learned, but he has waited for some reaction from party leaders before announcing his candidacy. He was not available for comment on his plans today, but close friends said he is considering filing his petitions.

Republicans needed a third candidate for councilman-at-large and it was understood they were attempting to induce George Kyle, Third ward councilman, to run for council-at-large and let another unnamed candidate seek the Third ward post. Kyle said, however, that he would seek re-election in his ward.

Roy Vaughn, active in the Mansfield Public Parks association, and James Anderson, who ran for council two years ago, will be the other two Republican candidates for the "at-large" posts, it was said.

W. C. Mansfield, unsuccessful candidate for council president two years ago, will be a candidate for that office again, while Dean A. Eckert, city treasurer from 1936 to 1938, will be the G.O.P. primary candidate for treasurer, according to Ralph M. Hardy, county G.O.P. executive chairman. Lydon Beam, who also was on the ticket two years ago, has filed for city solicitor.

Hardy said following a meeting last night of a special sub-committee of the county executive committee that Councilmen Russell Porch in First ward, and C. N. Shultz in the Second ward, were certain to run again. William Owings has announced on the Republican ticket in the Fourth ward and Paul Bush and B. L. Gouge in the Sixth ward.

On the Democratic ticket, Leslie K. Wagner has filed for solicitor, Howard G. Miller for re-election as council president, Harry M. Emmons and Herman Speas for councilmen-at-large, W. F. Feigenbaum for First ward council, Councilman Jacob Kutschall and Michael Mihalick for Fourth ward council, Fred Miller for Fifth ward council, and Stanley Wilburn and Arthur L. Croak for Sixth ward council.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 11, 1941.

Billions don't mean anything any more, and we'll have to start talking in trillions.

If Adolf Hitler does proclaim his "United States of Europe" there will be a lively secession movement.

A practice army is reported to have invaded New Jersey. First time we ever heard of that being done except by mosquitoes.

Mussolini's Threat to U. S.

IF THE JAPANESE are permitted to read it, we wonder what they'll think of Mussolini's speech yesterday, on the anniversary of Italy's entry into the war, in which he warned United States that Japan would get after us in the event of American "aggression" against the Axis.

Somehow or other, we get the impression that Japan has its hands full right now, and isn't at all anxious for an actual test of strength with the United States.

Also, somehow or other, we get the impression that Japan won't cheer too loudly over Mussolini's promise to call on Japan to fight whenever the Axis wants her to.

Maybe we aren't quite as tough, in a military way, as we expect to be later. But even so, it's hard to figure that Japan has any stomach for wanting to take us on.

That's one of the troubles with being an Axis partner—you're supposed to do as the big boss, Hitler, tells you, no matter whether you want to or not.

As for Mussolini, if he weren't speaking for the Axis—which is Hitler, of course—his warning to United States would be laughable. He's lost every battle he's had to fight alone, and a half million square miles of empire. If all Axis victories depended on him, there wouldn't be any.

Coming Closer and Closer to Home

STEADILY, the evidences of America's defense effort draw closer home.

First, Mansfield's National Guard battery is called for service.

Then comes the draft, and hundreds of Richland county young men leave for training.

Now comes the creation of a Mansfield unit of the newly-formed state guard, to be headed by Glenn L. Bierly as captain and Hollis D. Moorhead as first lieutenant.

The company is to be composed of 57 men and three officers, all able-bodied volunteers, who will be given uniforms and arms, and will be our home defense.

Capt. Bierly, given neither to exuberance nor undue alarm, puts it well when he says "The job we have to do is likely to be more important than we now realize."

The Tiger Purrs - - Look Out!

HITLER, interviewed by John Cudahy, purrs with peace and good will. He doesn't mean any harm to anybody, except to people who stand in the way of his benevolent projects for the amelioration of mankind. As for bothering us or any of the other nations in this hemisphere, it is to laugh! He would no sooner think of invading America than invading the moon. He couldn't do it if he wanted to—the obstacles are too great. And so on.

When Hitler talks like this, look out! Every country he has destroyed was invaded after he had declared that he had no intention of invasion. He uses the lie as a deliberate military weapon, just as he frankly said should be done in "Mein Kampf."

Besides, there is plenty of factual evidence in the propagandists and fifth columnists that he has scattered so plentifully in this country and throughout Latin-America, and in the threats and prophecies of Goebbels and other Nazi spokesmen.

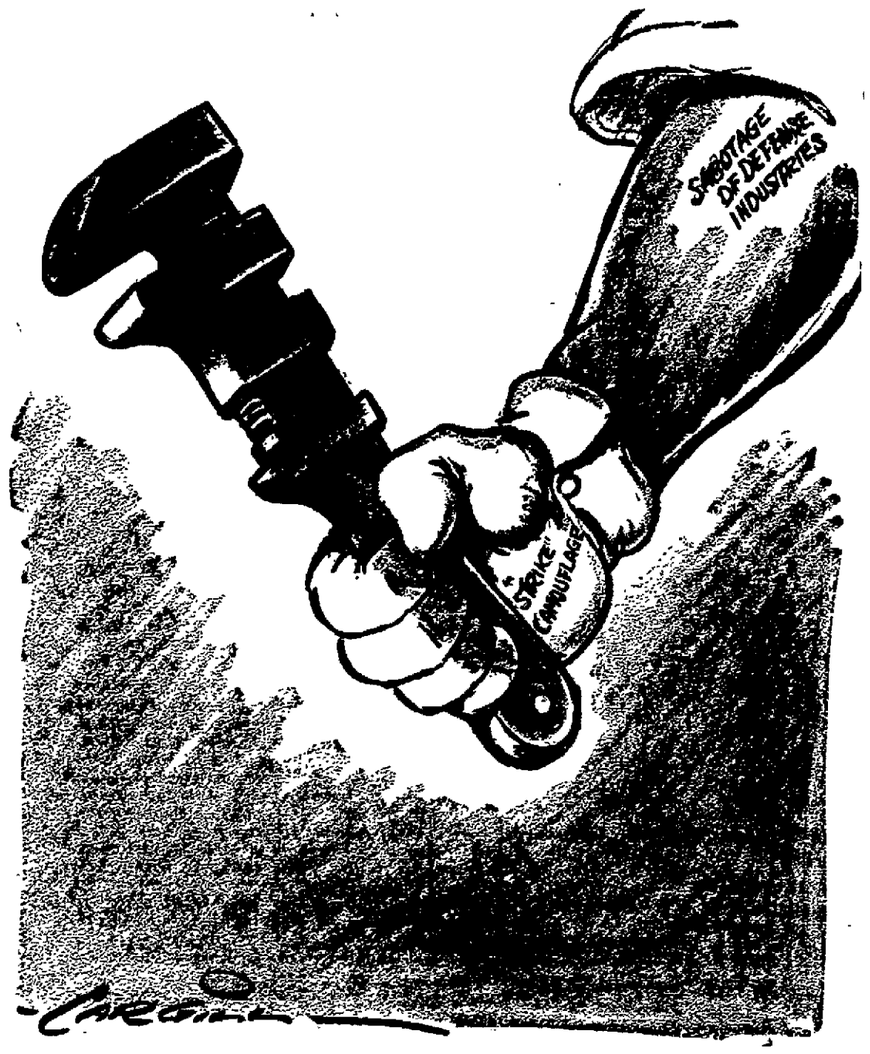
Permanent Leadership

WASHINGTON reports indicate that by the end of this year the United States will have made so much progress in air defense that it will have an air force "capable of insuring control over both North and South America."

This will be not only a notable achievement in the realm of aviation. It will be also the beginning of moral and military domination of the western hemisphere—not for forcible control of our neighbors, but for their security along with ours.

It has been made clear in the present war that defense from now on means mainly air power. Once gained in this hemisphere, such power should never be allowed to lapse.

OLD HAND, NEW GLOVE



A Veteran Cites a Parallel

(Editor's Note: The following letter came to a Mansfield veteran of the World war from his sergeant of those days. The writer married a French girl, brought her to America but returned to France where he lived and was employed by an American bank in Paris for more than 10 years. When the Germans took Paris, he returned to this country, and is in the New York office of the same bank. His comments are peculiarly timely, in view of the current wave of strikes in defense industries.)

* * *

"What do you think of the war? I wrote a letter to the Nashville paper (my old paper) at the time Belgium fell (was still over there then) and I stated that this was a World war. Also that if we didn't stop strikes over here (which we haven't) we would get the same way as France was getting then.

"I have been very sick at heart since arriving here, for people do not seem to think that the Germans can come over here. It is all so ridiculous to me for, having studied world politics since the last war, it is obvious that Germany does not want to fight us now but as soon as she has eaten up all of Europe and has time to reorganize, then she will come over.

* * *

"I believe it best to give England all the aid we can offer. And we should send another AEF as soon as we can and the landing place should be Greece or Italy. For if we allow the Germans to win over there, we are in for four or five years of living "on our arms" and that means keeping a great army doing nothing but drilling instead of working for a living—so the quicker the better.

"The strikes here remind me of France in 1933. I remember seeing a poster in a department store which stated that the stores would do better if they would quit trying to undersell each other. The posters explained that if they continued to cut prices that they would soon have to cut the workers' salaries in the factories. That would lead to labor trouble and therefore would naturally hurt France. But no one listened. There were strikes and in some places they were necessary, for the workers were getting low wages, which was causing prostitution and the country was being ruined in every way.

"Of course all this was desired by Communists. When the workers got what they wanted they were drunk with victory, and wanted more and more.

"Well, along came the war and the French people tried to get together and bury their differences—but the Reds had too good a start.

"Artillerymen came back from the front telling how they would put their "75's" in position and wait until the enemy tanks got close enough to be a sure target, and then they would let loose with the "75's" but found they were getting only about one out of five tanks. They opened up the shells and found them mostly to be loaded with sand, so they would have to leave their guns and scram.

* * *

"We remained in Paris because we just couldn't believe the Germans could reach there. Then it was too late. They were very polite but firm. They had everything they wanted. I stood at Port Mayo for hours at a time, watching them go by and all of them had machine guns. They showed plenty of everything needed to put an army on an up-to-date scale. It wasn't like the time you and I entered Germany. We walked—they rode in.

"I only wish I could talk to these people in the United States who are not cooperating with our government in getting ready for a war which will make our old battle (20 some odd years ago) look foolish. Strikes, indifference, bickering—everything that we had in France. And we're supposed to be smart and profit by others' experiences and mistakes."

State Travel Cost.

A new schedule for state employes who travel, limiting them to $3, $4.50, and $5 a day in intra-state business and $6 a day for journeys outside Indiana, follows the system established for federal employes. The use of state owned cars for other than official business is to be curtailed and obtaining gasoline from state garages will be more difficult. Budget officials estimate that between $20,000 and $25,000 a year will be saved.

With a growing demand for curtailment of unnecessary expenses, the budget committee might see what could be accomplished in reducing the number of cars provided for officials and appointees. Officials who are paid the highest salaries seem to draw the most expensive automobiles, with state policemen acting as escorts on trips that have nothing to do with state business.

In private life, the man who makes a reasonable salary provides his own car and maintains it. Two of the new state officials turned in the automobiles assigned them, thus setting an example for others.—Indianapolis News.

This Is Ohio

Gen. Benjamin Tupper, Ohio pioneer, was one of the 288 continental officers to sign the Newburgh petition in 1783, which eventually resulted in organization of the Ohio company.

Tupper took an active part in affairs of the company and accompanied the original settlers to Marietta in 1788.

With Gen. Rufus Putnam he was made judge of common pleas and quarter sessions and held the first court in the northwest territory on Sept. 9, 1788. Subsequently, as Putnam was occupied with other duties, Tupper was practically sole administrator of local justice on the Muskingum until his death in 1792.

Tupper had seven children, his daughter, Rowena, was the first wife of Winthrop Sargent, secretary under Gen. Arthur St. Clair of the northwest territory.

Shift In Oil Distribution May Help to Avoid 'Gasless Sundays'

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—It begins to look as if gasless Sundays might not be so necessary after all—if certain bare-knuckle reforms in the oil industry are put through by new National Oil Administrator Ickes. For instance, the tanker system.

When an oil tanker comes from the Gulf of Mexico up the East Coast, it may stop at Charleston to discharge part of its oil, then at Norfolk, then at Baltimore. It discharges a certain amount at each port where its company distributes or refines oil.

Simultaneously, a tanker belonging to another company will stop off at exactly the same ports. Thus the tankers of three or even four different companies may be feeding the same cities at the same time.

If, on the other hand, one company served one section of the country, or if one tanker delivered oil to all the companies in each port instead of only to its own, distribution would be measurably speeded.

Also, there are four different types of high octane gasoline being refined in the United States. All these varieties are not particularly necessary, one type being sufficient during the emergency. Concentration on only one type of high octane gas also would considerably increase gasoline output and distribution.

There is plenty of oil in the U. S. A.; it is only a matter of refinement and distribution.

Note—The anti-trust laws have prevented the oil companies from cutting competition of this kind, but the government oil administrator should be able to do what the oil companies can't.

No La Guardia, He.

Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Grover B. Hill went to Wichita Falls, Tex., when Mayor La Guardia of New York was scheduled to speak there. Hill is an ox-like man, with a mop of black hair, and his features are not unlike those of New York's "Little Flower."

He decided to follow the crowd and listen to La Guardia's speech. Suddenly he was approached by a group of men. Their spokesman said: "Welcome to Wichita Falls, Mr. Mayor. We are the reception committee."

"Not for me," said the Assistant Secretary.

"Yes, sir," said the spokesman. "And we've got only a few minutes before the address begins. Will you come along?"

"No, thanks," said Hill. "I'm just going to stay here and listen to the speech."

The men were perplexed. "The time is getting short, Mr. Mayor—"

"But I'm not the Mayor," said Hill.

In some embarrassment, the Wichita Falls reception committee withdrew a few paces and went into a huddle. Presently they came back, with smiles on their faces, and said, "Mr. Mayor, we appreciate your little joke, but it really is time to go."

* * *

National Morale.

No announcement has been made about it, but the job of energizing national morale has been turned over to Mayor La Guardia.

Nor has any announcement been made of the bitter inner cabinet debate as to whether he should be appointed.

This job is in addition to La Guardia's duties as director of civil defense, and the inside story goes back to last December, when Roosevelt was urged to counteract subversive Nazi-Communist propaganda. He agreed, but said Lowell Mellett, an "anonymous" White House secretary, was handling it.

Mellett is one of the most gentlemanly and well-intentioned men in official Washington. As a host or companion on a golf course, he is without peer. But not when it comes to forceful action.

Leading writers, playwrights, theater and movie producers and other prominent figures, eager for a patriotic drive to speed defense, had bombarded Mellett for months with offers of volunteer service and plans and suggestions. But nothing happened.

* * *

The Old Run-Around.

Finally Secretary Ickes raised the matter at a cabinet meeting and offered to formulate a program. Roosevelt gave his approval. And Ickes, with characteristic vigor, swung into action. Whereupon Mellett interposed objections.

For months he had been a bump on a log, doing nothing. But now he got all hot and bothered—about Ickes taking over. Mellett didn't like it, and a hot undercover wrangle ensued. Finally Roosevelt halted the argument by turning the whole matter over to Vice President Wallace.

Picking up from Ickes, Wallace worked out a number of plans, turned them back to Roosevelt, who in turn put them in the hands of La Guardia when the latter became civil defense director. This has brought another squawk from Mellett that the morale job should be entrusted to a new agency set up for this express purpose.

But La Guardia, who made his own terms when he took his defense post, is still in charge of national morale.

Note—Mellett is responsible for the selection of most of the huge corps of so-called press aides cluttering defense agencies. Working newspapermen consider them generally incompetent and useless in the government service. One way NOT to get any information is to go to these men, most of whom spend their time getting out bales of useless releases.

* * *

Secrecy of Convoys.

Most people don't realize it, but the contents of almost every ship leaving the United States for England is known to Nazi Germany. However, learning just when the shipment will reach England and the route it will take, is another matter.

Getting information regarding the departure of supply ships to England is relatively simple. All Nazi agents have to do is go down to the waterfront to watch the loading of British ships. The type of goods being loaded cannot be readily concealed.

Or if an American vessel is loading for the Red Sea, the papers signed by the crew must disclose the port of destination. This is required by law, so that a seaman may know where he is going, and because extra insurance and sometimes extra wages are paid if the ship enters certain areas.

Once a British ship is loaded, however, the utmost secrecy is imposed on its route and time of departure. Usually the ship hugs the shore as far north as the Canadian port of Halifax. There it may wait for days or even two or three weeks for a convoy to be made up.

When it finally leaves for the hazardous voyage across the Atlantic, orders are given to the ship's master by hand. Nothing is trusted to radio. A small boat puts out from the commander of the convoy, carrying sealed orders to the master of each vessel.

No other orders are given, and no radio messages are exchanged during the trip except in case of attack, because radio messages might be picked up by Nazi patrol planes.

Note—American ships, on the other hand, follow a regular, well-advertised course and constantly send out radio messages informing the world of their position.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Let's not go outside today; it's raining. Let's stay indoors, and have a look at the mail, and see how the world looks from a desk in Rockefeller Center . . . This desk looks junky, but interesting. . . . . .

For instance, here's a note and a package from Lanny Ross . . . That reminds me . . . Several months ago, in an East Side restaurant, I said to Lanny, "Why don't you make a recording of Ave Maria?" . . . He thought it over for a moment . . . He even hummed a few bars . . . "You know," he said, "maybe I will."

Well, here it is . . . Bach-Gounod's Ave Maria" by Lanny Ross. His sec'y just called, and left it on the desk.

Now let's have a look at that green package with the orange and purple top . . . it's from New Orleans, and with it is a note from Mr. Wm. B. Reily . . . "When somebody writes about New Orleans," says Mr. Reily, "or about Louisiana, we feel that we have to send him some of our good old dark roast New Orleans coffee & chicory—Luzianne. . . . It's one of those coffees you either swear at —or by."

But, not only is there coffee . . . There is a small drip coffee pot, with printed instructions . . . Mr. Reily, it's a pleasure; we are in your debt.

THIS bundle in the brown wrapping paper is from Mrs. Ruth Brown of the Oxford University Press . . . It contains the "Michigan State Guide" and the "Wyoming State Guide"—two new additions to the truly fine portrait of America that is being built, state by state, by the state writers projects of the WPA . . . They tell all there is to know about Michigan, and about Wyoming, yesterday and today, a hundred years ago, and now.

Here's a note that says "Call Blue Barron." . . . Old Blue . . . He's in off the road . . . He's had almost a year of one night stands, playing theaters, playing small town dance halls, taking a bus here, a train there . . . Once, coming from Chicago to Kansas City, his instruments and all his music got lost . . . He got into Kansas City at 8 p. m. . . . And the band was scheduled to go on at 9 . . . The band that was there was supposed to go off at that hour . . . But, with no instruments or music, Blue couldn't go on . . . So while Blue and his boys burned up the telegraph wires, the other band played on . . . They got their equipment at midnight . . . "Well," says Blue, "what the heck! Those things happen . . . There's something happens in every town."

A NOTE from RKO . . . Ronald Colman is at the Pierre . . . Suite 24. . . . How about cocktails at 6 p. m.? . . . Jean Dalrymple calls . . . Broadway may be dead, she says, but Maplewood, N. J., is very much alive . . . Helen Hayes is to appear there in "Twelfth Night"—at the Maplewood theater. . . . How about it? . . . Maplewood is a good summer theater town . . . They've got quite a season lined up there. . . .

It's a good thing we stayed indoors . . . That rain is really comingdown . Outside, on the pavements, the first neons are beginning to cast their smears of light. . . . It's that dark outside.

Growing Dwarf Trees

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I WALKED through a nurseryman's field of young apple trees. It must have been a quarter mile wide and a half mile long—straight parallel lines of leafy switches that seemed to merge into one large patch of green at the distant end. I wondered where the company would sell so many trees.

A man was working, and I asked how old these trees were.

"Those have a one year top," he said. "The budded part that bears the leaves will be two years old next fall. The roots will be three years old next spring. We plant the apple seeds or have the seedlings shipped."

"Where are they shipped from?" I inquired.

'Sometimes from England and sometimes from Europe. Good roots to a tree are like a firm foundation under a house."

We walked over to another field and he showed me smaller apple and pear trees. "These are the dwarfs. They seldom get more'n six feet high. There's quite a demand for them nowadays where space is small and in landscaping. The fruit is just as good and easier to pick—this row is Delicious, that one Grimes, and that one Baldwin."

"But how do you guarantee them to be small like that?"

"That's a long story. We start with a very small tree, normal except for size—they happen occasionally. We let it grow in the open for a year so the branches spread, then cut the top back to about 18 inches above ground. The next fall we bury the branches and the top for a summer—much like you bury celery.

"By the next spring roots have formed at the base of each branch. We sever each branch if the roots are strong enough, and plant it like a grape cutting. It becomes a little tree and the following fall they are budded or grafted to the variety desired. On that dwarf root, the new top will grow only 5 or 6 feet high. It will bear the second year after sale and then regularly. They're ideal for the small lawn or garden."

For as in Adam all die, so in Christ shall all be made alive.—I Cor. 15:22.

Let's Look Around

San Francisco, Story-Book City

—By G. J. KOCHENDERFER

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.—So the motor trail across country has finally led to this "dream city" of San Francisco, as compact as Los Angeles is scattered, and with a fascination that is all its own.

Rich in history and tradition, San Francisco gives a first impression of being more of a story-book city than a reality—especially if the first glimpse is caught after nightfall from such a commanding viewpoint as the 19th floor lookout of a Nob Hill hotel, from which the fairyland of a brilliantly lighted city and the surrounding area spreads out far below.

There are the long stretches of the Golden Gate bridge, largest single-span suspension bridge ever built, and from another of the large windows, which make up the wall space around the room, is seen the famous San Francisco-Oakland bridge, which crosses four and a half miles of navigable water and passes alongside Treasure Island, on which a few reminders of the recent Golden Gate exposition are still seen.

Also standing grimly out in the bay, a few miles from shore, is a lighted island which turns out to be Alcatraz, the closely guarded prison of desperate convicts whose crimes against society have justified confinement on "The Rock."

From this panorama of San Francisco comes a hint of things to be seen and places to be visited in daylight—but an evening trip must be made through "Chinatown," where around 25,000 Chinese people make up the largest Chinese settlement outside of their native land.

Modernized Chinatown in San Francisco has outgrown its disrepute of earlier times—as has also the notorious "Barbary Coast"—and its opium dens and tong wars are things of the past. Covering 12 square blocks, Chinatown is easily reached from the downtown section and is largely devoted to the business of catering to tourists and supplying needs of its own people. Business and residential construction is still typical of the Orient and the night scene is enchanting.

* * *

SEEN by daylight San Francisco's business center seems not unlike that of other big cities, and the hurry of noon-day crowds is similar to that seen in Cleveland or New York—to either of which "SF" has points of resemblance.

In spite of limited space, due to its peninsular location, San Francisco has not been miserly in allotting park space and centrally located Golden Gate park extends to a length of four miles and covers more than a thousand acres, with a variety of attractions among which days might be enjoyably spent.

* * *

DATING back to 1776, when the first Spanish settlement was established here, the Presidio military reservation, which is now taking on added activity, is on the site of the original Spanish post.

Those old-fashioned cable cars, necessary to negotiating the steep grades that suddenly merge from level streets, give a quaint air to the city's transportation system—and much of the travel, among residents and tourists, is by street car instead of automobiles. This does not seem to interfere, however, with traffic congestion and the difficulty of finding parking space—for San Francisco has not yet advanced to the point of installing parking meters.

* * *

TO BE REMEMBERED: Looking out on the ocean and harbor from Cliff House, and seeing seals at play on the rocks below. . . . Seafood dinner at Fishermen's Wharf, in the surroundings of hundreds of fishing boats in dock and ready for the next day's trip. . . . Confident prediction that San Francisco will have no more rain before December. . . . Top coats worn practically every day in the year but no "straw hat season." . . . Driving up streets on which motorists are warned not to attempt it except in low gear.

MISS MARY PROCTOR TO HEAD PILGRIM GUILD

Congregational Group Entertains Guests at Final Meeting of Season at Home of Mrs. Burton Preston, Woodhill Road.

WHEN members of the Pilgrim Guild of the First Congregational church met for a guest party and final meeting of the season Tuesday afternoon annual election of officers took place. The group was entertained at the home of Mrs. Burton Preston, 550 Woodland road, with seventy-five in attendance. Miss Mary Proctor was chosen to head the guild for the coming year and will be assisted by Mrs. John Graham, vice president; Mrs. George Meilinger, secretary, and Mrs. Ralph Emerson, treasurer.

Members of the new executive committee are Mrs. Peter Young, Mrs. Dwight Smith and Mrs. Charles Fox. A picnic luncheon was served at noon at small tables placed in the yard and on the terraces. HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, June 12.

A most exhilarating and promising day may be heralded by very auspicious planetary vibrations, with the forecast of the element of surprise, suddenness, strange and intriguing adventures and experiences, all of which combine to enhance personal prestige, popularity and happiness as well as to put the financial status on a progressive and productive basis. Unexpected opportunities to achieve cherished aims and ideals may be looked for, but there is a hint not to be carried away by over-ambitious projects or by the peculiar excitements or extraordinary developments. Change is involved but be watchful in public contact or relations.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a pleasant year of unexpected advancement, much progress, with enhanced popularity, prestige and fulfilled ambitions, attainment of many cherished hopes and wishes, both practical, material and aspirational. An all around expansive and warming as well as surprising element dominates, the only menace being a too exhilarated or ambitious pace. With some conservatism and an eye to public antagonism or jealousy, it is a time for advance upon the highest goals and ideals of happiness.

A child born on this day should be excellently endowed for the surprising success and accomplishment which will crown its expansive and generous life. It may have practical talents as well as much cultural and humanitarian ambition.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"The gangster motto," Philip Veritzen went on, pointing his rebuke to me, "describes the only safe unfavorable witness as being a dead one, you know."

"Yes, I know," I said meekly, "and I agree with you. But now we must consider this man. He, of course, is determined to get that letter."

"But," Olga interposed, "isn't it your theory that Marion was forced to write that letter? Wouldn't they know what was in it?"

"Yes, but not that it contained a code," I said. "That they must have inferred from my telephone to my father, although there was but a slight reference to the fact that the letter had a hidden meaning."

"That won't help Marion any," Philip Veritzen said, "when the gangsters who are holding her interrogate her about the meaning of the letter."

Madge Constantly in Fear.

A shiver ran over me at the grim comment which so confirmed the gnawing fear that had been with me ever since the gangster on the train had demanded Marion's letter from me.

"I know," I said. "And now my only hope is that the gangster on the train didn't telephone anybody else except this man who is here."

"But," Philip Veritzen objected, "sooner or later that man can get to a telephone."

"Of course," I said, "but I do not believe he would take the risk of telephoning the headquarters where Marion probably is kept. He will count upon the resourcefulness of this confederate who is now upon the balcony. Besides, he wants to get hold of Carolyn, and no doubt he will trail her back to Weirhampton. Dicky and Ronald are escorting her there tomorrow."

Olga's musical voice sounded a query which I intuitively had expected.

Suspect Carolyn Brixton.

"Don't you think," she asked, "that Carolyn Brixton knows much more than she should about this affair?"

"Undoubtedly she does," her husband answered for me, "and I imagine that your father, Madge, eventually will put her through a very effective third degree.

"But just now our problem is that man on the balcony. He must be kept from your father's interrogation, and frankly I am afraid he might outwit my men."

He paused, evidently weighing the problem, then went on slowly.

"He must have gotten out of that window and across to your balcony with the aid of some clever rope contrivance, and he must also be possessed of unusual strength and agility. If he becomes aware of the fact that we are having him shadowed, he may escape from the balcony down the side of the wall."

The vague plan which had been in the rear of my consciousness emerged into coherence.

Madge Proposes a Plan.

"If there were no disturbance involving the hotel," I said diffidently, "would you be willing for me to try an experiment?"

He looked questioningly at me.

"That depends," he said. "If it is anything involving any risk to yourself—"

"No, it isn't," I interposed hastily, salving my conscience with the reflection that the risk to me really would be negligible. "But I should have to bring four or five of my father's men to the hotel, and into this room here, for instructions, and then let them go ahead with my plan."

"Bring a dozen, if you like," he said, "only—can they come in one or two at a time, at intervals of two or three minutes?"

"Of course," I answered promptly, for I saw the reason for his request, "You do not wish them to attract any attention or comment."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

BY

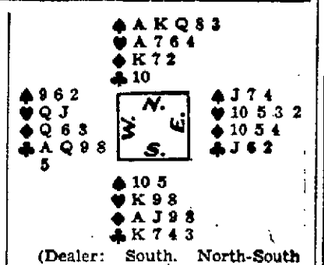
Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

NOTHING UNIMPORTANT

Most of the bidding and play in rubber bridge is exactly the same as in match-point duplicate, when fine players are engaged. Duplicate, however, shows up much more emphatically than rubbers the difference in ability between players, and teaches more definitely the fact that nothing in bridge is unimportant. If you make just one careless discard against a truly skilled declarer, you may find him taking utmost advantage of it to score extra tricks.

Pretty bidding, that. South's belated raise of North's second major showed he had only three cards of it. North's spade rebid made clear his 5-4 division between the two majors. South's first bid of No Trumps was very good to place the lead up to his K if the unbid clubs got led. And the play was pretty by the declarer, Lee Hazen, national individual masters champion.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

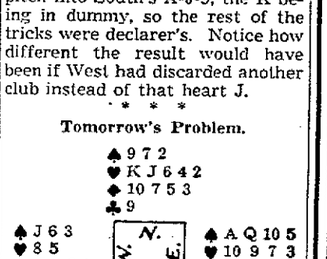
South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♦	Pass	2 ♥	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 ♦	Pass
3 ♥	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
3 NT

West's club 8 lead brought the 10, J and K, and five spade tricks followed. South throwing off two clubs and a diamond. West had to discard twice. His first was the club 5, but the second the heart J—very bad and very costly. Since West held his diamonds, Mr. Hazen read him as having that Q, and only the two hearts he did possess. So next he dropped the Q with the heart A, finessed the heart 9, cashed the heart K, then since West had thrown two clubs on the hearts, put him in the lead with the club 7 to the A.

What could poor West do? With only his three diamonds, he had to pitch into South's A-J-9, the K being in dummy, so the rest of the tricks were declarer's. Notice how different the result would have been if West had discarded another club instead of that heart J.

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

If South bids 1-No Trump here, North 2-Hearts and South 3-No Trumps, West leading the diamond 4, the 3 being played from dummy and East discarding the club 7, how should South plan his play?

Mansfield Electric Service Rates TO BE REDUCED

● Legislation passed by the Mansfield City Council will soon reduce drastically the rates for residential electric service.

What this reduction in electric rates will actually mean to you as an individual consumer of electricity can best be explained in this way: Many Mansfield residential electric service customers pay electric service bills from $1.85 a month to $2.60 a month. After the new rates become effective these homes will be able to use from 28 per cent to 44 per cent MORE electricity than they are now using without paying one cent more than they are now paying under the present rates.

To you this means that you can put many more electrical servants to work in your home . . . you can take full advantage of the time and work they can save you . . . and yet not have it cost you anything for additional current for operating these extra electrical appliances. You could, for example, enjoy the speed, ease-of-operation, convenience, and labor-saving advantages of an electric ironer without paying any more for electric current than you are now paying under the present rate.

Start now to plan how you can best take advantage of these drastic reductions in electric service rates. It is your opportunity to save yourself time, work, and trouble . . . to live the modern, effortless, electrical way by getting those electrical servants you have always wanted . . . and enjoy the use of them without paying any more than you pay now for your electric service.

If you have been paying this much for electric service per month	You can use this much MORE electricity yet not increase your bill
1.60	50%
2.00	43%
2.40	39%
2.80	20%
3.20	11%
3.53	8%
3.78	8%
4.03	10%
4.53	11%
5.03	13%
5.28	13%

FOR EXAMPLE, if you are now paying from $1.85 to $2.60 a month for electric service here are a few of the additional electrical appliances you will be able to use when the new rates go into effect, without paying any more.

HOLLYWOOD—When the scenarists are figuring out ways for Boy to meet Girl, they ought to ask Lou Costello how he met his wife, the former Ann Battler.

She was a showgirl in one of the Costello units, and when Lou heard her name he said "Battler, huh?" and kept up a constant backstage kidding. One night, doing a comic sailor routine, he planted his foot in a wastebasket (which he intended), tripped (which he did not intend) and knocked over a hall tree which conked "the Battler" in the head and knocked her cold. CITES CONFLICT OF DEMOCRATIC, NAZI SYSTEMS

Stimson Tells West Pointers World Isn't Big Enough To Hold Both.

WEST POINT, N. Y.—Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson said today that the world isn't big enough to hold both the democratic and Nazi systems and that the issue between the two cannot be compromised or appeased.

This, he told the graduating class of the U. S. Military Academy, is the issue underlying the crisis which confronts the nation. Stimson told the 425 new officers that the task of meeting this crisis "may fall in large measure upon your shoulders."

He branded as "wishful thinkers" those who urge "that we can make terms with the Nazi system and that our system can peacefully live in the same world . . ."

Stimson said "the very sharpness of the issue which the leaders of the Axis powers have raised today not only demonstrates that any compromise between their system and ours is impossible; but it also demonstrates by that very fact that, however powerful and effective and dangerous their entire system may seem to be at the moment, it is a system so at variance with the entire history of man's progress that it will not endure permanently—it is doomed to eventual and total failure."

He cautioned the cadets, however, not to "underestimate the critical danger which at this moment faces our country or the courage and diligence which is needed by you in your preparation for its defense."

He told the cadets that too many young men have grown up with the belief that "the old days for sacrifice were ended and that the world owed them nothing but comfort and luxury."

While this does not apply to West Pointers, he said, still "your bodies must be continually hardened, your minds must be constantly stimulated and your spirit of devotion to your country must be forever nourished."

With these factors and with the requisite material preparation, he added, democracy will produce men with a "better initiative, better lasting power and an unconquerable morale."

CHECK UP ON CITY PROPERTY

City Officials and Insurance Underwriters Prepare For New Rate Schedule.

City officials took inventory of Mansfield's municipal properties yesterday afternoon along with insurance underwriters to set up a new insurance rate schedule.

Mayor William J. Locke, City Engineer W. C. Statler and representatives of the underwriters toured the city inspecting and appraising the various buildings and additions made since 1938 when the last schedule was arranged.

The mayor said that the city's possessions were insured for about $470,000 from June 1, 1938, to the beginning of this month. He also said that additions were expected because of the many improvements within that period.

City Auditor Paul L. Kelley said that the 1941 budget provided $8,625 to be paid for insurance premiums include: municipal building, $1,500; sewage disposal plant, $1,500; garbage department, $125; and waterworks department, $5,500 which also includes fixed expense. Insurance for fire and police equipment are not included in these figures.

RED CROSS REPORTS VARIETY OF ACTIVITIES FOR MONTH

Thirty-four welfare cases were handled by Richland county chapter of the Red Cross last month, according to the report of R. K. Clark, military and naval service chairman, made at the executive board meeting yesterday afternoon. Awards for the month amounted to $222 making a total of $11,944.40 since January.

Cases handled by the chapter had to do with the welfare of families of deceased ex-service men, disability, war relief inquiries and selectees in service.

The board held its meeting at the Red Cross Production Center, 45 West Fourth street, for the first time, so that the members might see the volunteer workers in action and inspect the equipment.

Mrs. Leopold Adams, chairman of volunteer service production, pointed out in her report that 630 workers gave 5,062 hours of volunteer service in the making of garments and dressings for war relief during May. A total of the garments were sent to New Jersey for overseas shipment and 16,295 dressings were completed for the medical department.

Materials for the quota which is to be completed by Dec. 31 are being received daily and women are urged to aid in making garments so that the quota may be met, Mrs. Adams said.

Milo W. Hieber, chapter chairman, announced that the committee in charge of interviewing applicants for the post of executive secretary, headed by Mrs. George Draffan, had conducted several interviews but that no decision had been reached.

Mrs. Moneta Calhoun of the Red Cross office acted as executive secretary during the session.

One hundred and five persons received first aid certificates during May, according to R. D. Iden, chairman of first aid and water safety.

The Bellville volunteer fire department, mindful that the speed-up in materials for national defense will require the use of secondary roads, has organized a first aid class with the thought in mind of establishing an Emergency highway first aid station, Iden said.

Two home nursing classes were completed May 26, Mrs J. B. Simons, home nursing chairman reported. Robert Black, chairman of disaster preparedness and relief announced that sub-committees were being re-organized to facilitate service.

Mrs. William J. Bishop, Junior Red Cross chairman, reported that four pairs of glasses had been purchased and favors provided hospital patients on Memorial day by the Junior group.

Laff-a-Day

"Joe, they want to know if you can marry 'em like the captain on a ship!"

City council records dating from 1906 to 1939 are being re-indexed and typed for a new binding by a trio of NYA girls in Council Clerk William J. Beer's office. Ordinances of a general nature pertaining to salaries, parking restrictions and the purchase and sale of lard are contained in the records. Many of these ordinances have been repealed or amended Beer said, but are frequently consulted as the worn bindings show. The NYA trio has reached the typing stage in the work and is replacing old hand-written records with freshly-typed sheets. The old manuscripts will be preserved however, Beer said. Engaged in the work are Winogene Queen, Audrey Beck and Madalen Shaffer.

Mansfield will see an unusual war film next week, but not in a theater. Brought to the city by the Mansfield chapter of the British War Relief society, the talking picture will be available free of charge to clubs and organizations for showing during an evening next week. Equipment and an operator for showing the picture will be provided without charge. The film, described by Lowell Thomas, shows war damage in London and scenes of the British embarkation from Dunkirk. Requests for the film should be made to Virgil G. Hartman, jr., 611 Arlington avenue, or to the British War Relief headquarters, 604 Farmers Bank building.

This is Flag week when every home and public building is urged to fly the national colors. But up until yesterday afternoon only one flag was displayed in downtown Mansfield and that was at the City News stand. Today there might have been one or two others but they weren't apparent to the casual observer. Flag day, June 14, will soon be here. And most people may be waiting until then to unfurl the colors. But since a nationwide effort is being exerted to make the public flag-conscious, this seems to be a good time to get into practice for Saturday.

BRITAIN, CHINA GET MATERIALS BY LEASE-LEND

President Makes First Report Today on Progress of Help To Democracies.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Approximately $75,000,000 in lend-lease materials have been delivered to Great Britain and China in the two months since enactment of the $7,000,000,000 (billion) aid-to-democracies program, it was learned today.

Defense officials said aid to Britain now is on a scale at least 10 times greater than last year.

Authoritative sources also disclosed that President Roosevelt has asked the army and navy to prepare a report on what additional war supplies purchased with funds appropriated before March 11 are available for immediate disposition.

President Roosevelt's initial report on the progress of lend-lease activities was expected to be transferred to congress today. The act requires the president to make such a report every 90 days.

Defense officials summarized aid to Britain this way:

Aircraft exports in the first five months this year were 12 times as great as in the corresponding months of 1940.

Aircraft engine exports were 10 times greater for the same period.

Iron and steel products and machine tools exported were three times as great in dollar value.

Explosive exports in the first four months this year were 17 times greater than in the same period last year.

Fire arms and ammunition exports in the first four months were 90 times greater.

The $75,000,000 in lend-lease supplies, which included food as well as munitions, were delivered to Britain and China between March 27—when the $7,000,000,000 appropriation was approved and June 1. Britain also continued to receive increasingly larger deliveries of materials ordered before that program was initiated.

Real aid to the British extended beyond the mere shipment of war supplies, however. Informed sources said that more than 60 Allied merchants ships are now in American yards undergoing repairs, being equipped with deck guns, anti-magnetic mine devices and ammunition. By July 15, this number is expected to be increased to 200.

Between March 27 and June 1, Mr. Roosevelt allocated more than $4,250,000,000 in lend-lease funds among five government agencies —war, navy, agriculture and treasury department, and the maritime commission.

Uniform Traffic Code Spells End Of Rotary Turn

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Cleveland's rotary traffic turn—preserved for 33 years as the city's answer to pedestrian and motorist safety—appeared doomed today.

Right-swings for left turns will be abandoned at virtually all intersections, traffic authorities said as they prepared new regulations to conform to the uniform traffic code becoming effective in Ohio Sept. 2.

The code does not prohibit the rotary turn, but requires that signs be posted prominently at places where it is retained.

Cleveland has long defended the regulation as a safety measure but admitted it slowed the flow of traffic.

It is the bane of visiting motorists, but is credited by its defenders with saving hundreds of lives.

"It keeps automobiles out of the paths of pedestrians and other automobiles," said Acting Traffic Commissioner Martin A. Blecke, who predicted the rotary turn would be retained at a few intersections, if only at rush hours.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT

EXTRA KILOWATT HOURS for MANSFIELD HOMES without EXTRA COST!

Mansfield Electric Service Rates TO BE REDUCED

● Legislation passed by the Mansfield City Council will soon reduce drastically the rates for residential electric service.

What this reduction in electric rates will actually mean to you as an individual consumer of electricity can best be explained in this way: Many Mansfield residential electric service customers pay electric service bills from $1.85 a month to $2.60 a month. After the new rates become effective these homes will be able to use from 28 per cent to 44 per cent MORE electricity than they are now using without paying one cent more than they are now paying under the present rates.

To you this means that you can put many more electrical servants to work in your home . . . you can take full advantage of the time and work they can save you . . . and yet not have it cost you anything for additional current for operating these extra electrical appliances. You could, for example, enjoy the speed, ease-of-operation, convenience, and labor-saving advantages of an electric ironer without paying any more for electric current than you are now paying under the present rate.

Start now to plan how you can best take advantage of these drastic reductions in electric service rates. It is your opportunity to save yourself time, work, and trouble . . . to live the modern, effortless, electrical way by getting those electrical servants you have always wanted . . . and enjoy the use of them without paying any more than you pay now for your electric service.

If you have been paying this much for electric service per month	You can use this much MORE electricity yet not increase your bill

HOLLYWOOD—When the scenarists are figuring out ways for Boy to meet Girl, they ought to ask Lou Costello how he met his wife, the former Ann Battler.

She was a showgirl in one of the Costello units, and when Lou heard her name he said "Battler, huh?" and kept up a constant backstage kidding. One night, doing a comic sailor routine, he planted his foot in a wastebasket (which he intended), tripped (which he did not intend) and knocked over a hall tree which conked "the Battler" in the head and knocked her cold. And so they were married. . . .

CITES CONFLICT OF DEMOCRATIC, NAZI SYSTEMS

Stimson Tells West Pointers World Isn't Big Enough To Hold Both.

WEST POINT, N. Y.—Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson said today that the world isn't big enough to hold both the democratic and Nazi systems and that the issue between the two cannot be compromised or appeased.

This, he told the graduating class of the U. S. Military Academy, is the issue underlying the crisis which confronts the nation. Stimson told the 425 new officers that the task of meeting this crisis "may fall in large measure upon your shoulders."

He branded as "wishful thinkers" those who urge "that we can make terms with the Nazi system and that our system can peacefully live in the same world . . ."

Stimson said "the very sharpness of the issue which the leaders of the Axis powers have raised today not only demonstrates that any compromise between their system and ours is impossible; but it also demonstrates by that very fact that, however powerful and effective and dangerous their entire system may seem to be at the moment, it is a system so at variance with the entire history of man's progress that it will not endure permanently—it is doomed to eventual and total failure."

He cautioned the cadets, however, not to "underestimate the critical danger which at this moment faces our country or the courage and diligence which is needed by you in your preparation for its defense."

He told the cadets that too many young men have grown up with the belief that "the old days for sacrifice were ended and that the world owed them nothing but comfort and luxury."

While this does not apply to West Pointers, he said, still "your bodies must be continually hardened, your minds must be constantly stimulated and your spirit of devotion to your country must be forever nourished."

With these factors and with the requisite material preparation, he added, democracy will produce men with a "better initiative, better lasting power and an unconquerable morale."

CHECK UP ON CITY PROPERTY

City Officials and Insurance Underwriters Prepare For New Rate Schedule.

City officials took inventory of Mansfield's municipal properties yesterday afternoon along with insurance underwriters to set up a new insurance rate schedule.

Mayor William J. Locke, City Engineer W. C. Statler and representatives of the underwriters toured the city inspecting and appraising the various buildings and additions made since 1938 when the last schedule was arranged.

The mayor said that the city's possessions were insured for about $470,000 from June 1, 1938, to the beginning of this month. He also said that additions were expected because of the many improvements within that period.

City Auditor Paul L. Kelley said that the 1941 budget provided $8,625 to be paid for insurance premiums include: municipal building, $1,500; sewage disposal plant, $1,500; garbage department, $125; and waterworks department, $5,500 which also includes fixed expense. Insurance for fire and police equipment are not included in these figures.

RED CROSS REPORTS VARIETY OF ACTIVITIES FOR MONTH

Thirty-four welfare cases were handled by Richland county chapter of the Red Cross last month, according to the report of R. K. Clark, military and naval service chairman, made at the executive board meeting yesterday afternoon. Awards for the month amounted to $222 making a total of $11,944.40 since January.

Cases handled by the chapter had to do with the welfare of families of deceased ex-service men, disability, war relief inquiries and selectees in service.

The board held its meeting at the Red Cross Production Center, 45 West Fourth street, for the first time, so that the members might see the volunteer workers in action and inspect the equipment.

Mrs. Leopold Adams, chairman of volunteer service production, pointed out in her report that 630 workers gave 5,062 hours of volunteer service in the making of garments and dressings for war relief during May. A total of the garments were sent to New Jersey for overseas shipment and 16,295 dressings were completed for the medical department.

Materials for the quota which is to be completed by Dec. 31 are being received daily and women are urged to aid in making garments so that the quota may be met, Mrs. Adams said.

Milo W. Hieber, chapter chairman, announced that the committee in charge of interviewing applicants for the post of executive secretary, headed by Mrs. George Draffan, had conducted several interviews but that no decision had been reached.

Mrs. Moneta Calhoun of the Red Cross office acted as executive secretary during the session.

One hundred and five persons received first aid certificates during May, according to R. D. Iden, chairman of first aid and water safety.

The Bellville volunteer fire department, mindful that the speed-up in materials for national defense will require the use of secondary roads, has organized a first aid class with the thought in mind of establishing an Emergency highway first aid station, Iden said.

Two home nursing classes were completed May 26, Mrs. J. B. Simons, home nursing chairman reported. Robert Black, chairman of disaster preparedness and relief announced that sub-committees were being re-organized to facilitate service.

Mrs. William J. Bishop, Junior Red Cross chairman, reported that four pairs of glasses had been purchased and favors provided hospital patients on Memorial day by the Junior group.

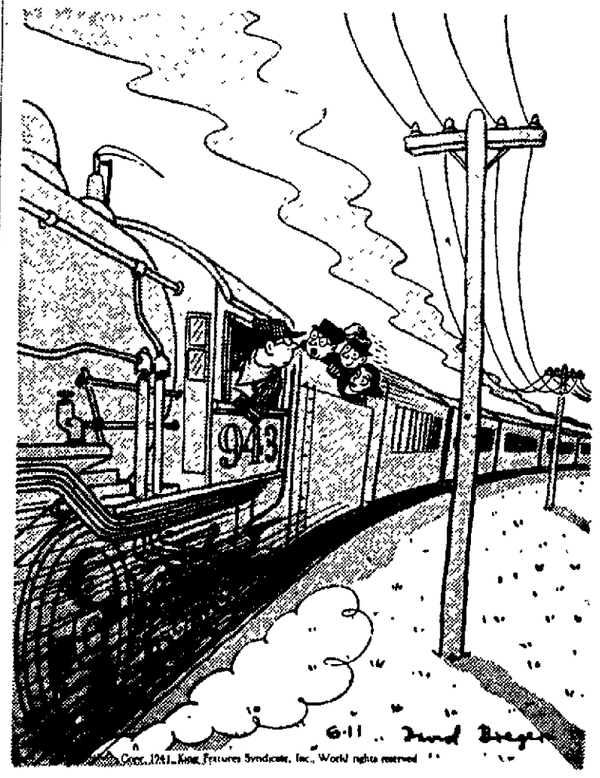
Laff-a-Day



"Joe, they want to know if you can marry 'em like the captain on a ship!"

City council records dating from 1906 to 1939 are being re-indexed and typed for a new binding by a trio of NYA girls in Council Clerk William J. Beer's office. Ordinances of a general nature pertaining to salaries, parking restrictions and the purchase and sale of lard are contained in the records. Many of these ordinances have been repealed or amended Beer said, but are frequently consulted as the worn bindings show. The NYA trio has reached the typing stage in the work and is replacing old hand-written records with freshly-typed sheets. The old manuscripts will be preserved however, Beer said. Engaged in the work are Winogene Queen, Audrey Beck and Madalen Shaffer.

Mansfield will see an unusual war film next week, but not in a theater. Brought to the city by the Mansfield chapter of the British War Relief society, the talking picture will be available free of charge to clubs and organizations for showing during an evening next week. Equipment and an operator for showing the picture will be provided without charge. The film, described by Lowell Thomas, shows war damage in London and scenes of the British embarkation from Dunkirk. Requests for the film should be made to Virgil G. Hartman, jr., 611 Arlington avenue, or to the British War Relief headquarters, 604 Farmers Bank building.

This is Flag week when every home and public building is urged to fly the national colors. But up until yesterday afternoon only one flag was displayed in downtown Mansfield and that was at the City News stand. Today there might have been one or two others but they weren't apparent to the casual observer. Flag day, June 14, will soon be here. And most people may be waiting until then to unfurl the colors. But since a nationwide effort is being exerted to make the public flag-conscious, this seems to be a good time to get into practice for Saturday.

BRITAIN, CHINA GET MATERIALS BY LEASE-LEND

President Makes First Report Today on Progress of Help To Democracies.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Approximately $75,000,000 in lend-lease materials have been delivered to Great Britain and China in the two months since enactment of the $7,000,000,000 (billion) aid-to-democracies program, it was learned today.

Defense officials said aid to Britain now is on a scale at least 10 times greater than last year.

Authoritative sources also disclosed that President Roosevelt has asked the army and navy to prepare a report on what additional war supplies purchased with funds appropriated before March 11 are available for immediate disposition.

President Roosevelt's initial report on the progress of lend-lease activities was expected to be transferred to congress today. The act requires the president to make such a report every 90 days.

Defense officials summarized aid to Britain this way:

Aircraft exports in the first five months this year were 12 times as great as in the corresponding months of 1940.

Aircraft engine exports were 10 times greater for the same period.

Iron and steel products and machine tools exported were three times as great in dollar value.

Explosive exports in the first four months this year were 17 times greater than in the same period last year.

Fire arms and ammunition exports in the first four months were 90 times greater.

The $75,000,000 in lend-lease supplies, which included food as well as munitions, were delivered to Britain and China between March 27—when the $7,000,000,000 appropriation was approved and June 1. Britain also continued to receive increasingly larger deliveries of materials ordered before that program was initiated.

Real aid to the British extended beyond the mere shipment of war supplies, however. Informed sources said that more than 60 Allied merchants ships are now in American yards undergoing repairs, being equipped with deck guns, anti-magnetic mine devices and ammunition. By July 15, this number is expected to be increased to 200.

Between March 27 and June 1, Mr. Roosevelt allocated more than $4,250,000,000 in lend-lease funds among five government agencies —war, navy, agriculture and treasury department, and the maritime commission.

Uniform Traffic Code Spells End Of Rotary Turn

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Cleveland's rotary traffic turn—preserved for 33 years as the city's answer to pedestrian and motorist safety—appeared doomed today.

Right-swings for left turns will be abandoned at virtually all intersections, traffic authorities said as they prepared new regulations to conform to the uniform traffic code becoming effective in Ohio Sept. 2.

The code does not prohibit the rotary turn, but requires that signs be posted prominently at places where it is retained.

Cleveland has long defended the regulation as a safety measure but admitted it slowed the flow of traffic.

It is the bane of visiting motorists, but is credited by its defenders with saving hundreds of lives.

"It keeps automobiles out of the paths of pedestrians and other automobiles," said Acting Traffic Commissioner Martin A. Blecke, who predicted the rotary turn would be retained at a few intersections, if only at rush hours.

"There," said Prexy Joe Donnelly of the Ohio State League, as Bill McGrath stepped up to the platter for the Findlay Oilers Monday night, "there is a mighty good young ball player you guys let slip away from you."

"We knew how good he was," I told Prexy Joe, "but we had to make a choice in cutting down to the 15-player limit, and McGrath was it.

"We felt that the players the Braves kept in preference to McGrath could do more things better than Bill. The choice was between McGrath and Graf Moore, who can play a very good third base as well as the outfield. And besides, room had to be made for Alex Clowson in that lineup."

* * *

"I can see your point," said Joe, "but I still think McGrath would have done you some good."

"Besides," chimed in the scorekeeper from Findlay, "McGrath can play first base."

"Yes," I informed him, "he played several games for us at first but he didn't look too good at that spot, even though he is a good right fielder and can hit that thing up at the dish.

* * *

So ring that thing for fielder Bill,
The score shows he's a slugger still

* * *

"How come." I asked my Findlay operative, "how come the Limas didn't hang on to McGrath? He went from here to there, and they certainly could have used him."

"They didn't even give him a chance," responded my Oiler friend. 'And they were begging for ball players too.

"Maybe the Limas don't know a ball player when they see one, and that accounts for their present low standing. Though they had enough good ones to look at last year, at that.

* * *

"Why," said my Findlay informant, "do you know what that McGrath's done since he's been with us?"

That I didn't know, and told him so.

'He's played six games and made 12 hits and driven in 10 runs, and made I don't know how many doubles and triples.

"And there he goes again, another double!" Later he scored a run, connected for a single, stole a base, and came close to stealing home when a squeeze play failed. Besides that he snagged a couple of fancy catches in right

Yankees Threaten Indians

Feller Notches 13th Win Against Nats.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The Indians are looking ahead to three week-end games with their newest challengers for first place, the New York Yankees.

Manager Roger Peckinpaugh indicated today he would start South-paws Al Smith and Al Milnar in the last two games of the Washington series here, leaving Bob Feller, Mel Harder and Jim Bagby, his ace right-handers, to handle the Ruppert Rifles in the opening contests of an eastern tour which gets under way Saturday.

The Senators picked Ken Chase to oppose Smith today.

Cleveland maintained its four-game edge over New York yesterday as Feller notched his 13th victory in stopping the Nats, 4 to 1.

* * *

Bob scattered four hits and fanned six batters in taking his eighth consecutive decision He was last beaten May 10 in St. Louis.

The victory put Feller three weeks ahead of his 1940 pace when he notched No. 13 on July 3 and went on to win 27 games

Various National league pitchers already have provided four one-hitters at Shibe park—and three of them have been crowded into the past eight days.

Hank Gornick, St. Louis Cardinal rookie who since has returned to the minors, held the Phillies to a lone safety on May 3. Tommy Hughes of the Phils duplicated the trick June 3 against the Chicago Cubs. Three nights later Johnny Vander Meer of the Cincinnati Reds pitched what some of his teammates call his third no-hitter, giving the Phils one scratchy single.

Yesterday Lon Warneke, the lean veteran of the Cardinals, joined the society with a 3-0 shutout of the Phils in which the only blow was a single by Emmett Mueller, the home club's first man up in the opening inning.

* * *

Steve Peek, rookie knuckleballer of the New York Yankees, had a one-hitter going into the ninth against the Chicago White Sox. He weakened to allow five singles and three runs in that frame, but the Yankees won easily, 8-3, and took over second place in the American league.

* * *

Tommy Bridges, the little veteran of the Detroit Tigers, put on a strikeout show against the Philadelphia Athletics, fanning 14, but tired badly in the late innings and had to be rescued by big Al Benton as Detroit won, 4-3.

A night game between the Boston Red Sox and St. Louis Browns was postponed.

The Brooklyn Dodgers cut short their slump with a 4-3 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates, who were held to six hits by their old Nemesis, Fred Fitzsimmons. Vander Meer achieved his sixth success of the season by scattering nine hits as the world champion Cincinnati Reds beat the Boston Braves, 4-3, for their ninth conquest in 11 games and took over third place.

Vern Olsen pitched the Chicago Cubs to an 11-0 shutout of the New York Giants.

Westies and Barnes Win Softball Tilts.

* * *

Yuncker's Sports sunk the Smoke Shop 11-8 in the other league tilt yesterday.

* * *

Geiger, Westinghouse pitcher, had a perfect day at bat to lead his club with five out of five while he set down B'nai Brith with seven hits Miner and Berry slugged the onion out of the lot once each for Westinghouse. Jacobson led B'nai B'rith with two hits in three chances.

K. Lockhart and Kurek homered for Yuncker's Sports. Miles led the Smoke Shop batsmen with two hits out of four chances.

Yunckers are runner up to the league leaders with two wins in three games.

Old Mose Gets Close to 300 Mark

Robert Moses (Lefty) Grove, one of the greatest lefthanders of all times, almost has reached his goal of 300 victories in the major leagues. When Lefty recently set down the Chicago White Sox, he recorded his 297th big league win. Grove, now 41 years old, first came into the majors in 1924 when Connie Mack purchased him from the Baltimore Orioles for his Athletics for a reported $106,000. It was not until 1927 that Grove really began to click. He won 20 for the A's that year and followed with six years of 20 or more victories. His best record is 31 won and four lost in 1931. In 1933 he was traded to Boston with two other players for a reported cash consideration of $125.000. Last year, pitching but 22 games, Lefty won seven games against six losses. Only pitchers in major league history to win 300 or more games are Grover Alexander, John Clarkson, Walter Johnson, Tim Keefe, Christy Matthewson, Tony Mullane, Charles Nichols, Eddie Plank, Charles Radbourne, Mike Welch and Cy Young.

NEW YORK — (The Special News Service)—Joe Louis done a lot of fighting in ballparks around the country, but when he goes against Conn next week in the Polo grounds, it will be his first stand in a National League park . . . Doctors have told Lefty Gomez to wear glasses while elbowing—think his poor control may be due to faulty vision. . . . Van Mungo has looked real well in three games with Montreal, but he still has to show he can travel nine innings... Errors Help Findlay To Win Over Braves

Mansfield Meets Tiffin Mud Hens In Double Header at Fairground

WITH their winning streak of four straight games broken last night at Findlay, Mansfield Braves attempt to get back on the victory trail tonight in a double-header at the Fairground when they meet the Tiffin Mud Hens who are tied for first place in the Ohio State league with Findlay.

Findlay took an early lead last night, scoring one run in the first and two in the second before Mansfield crashed through with its lone marker in the third.

* * *

Stevenson's triple to center with one gone in the first started the trouble. Cannon popped high to Mangan at second, and Stevenson scored when Tim dropped the fly. Mazgay lined a double to center but Cannon was out at the plate and Mazgay out at third as they tried to stretch the hit.

* * *

Bill McGrath, the former Brave, led off in the second with a single to center. Ruley also singled to center and McGrath went to third when the ball got away from Salem. Mutryn threw into center field trying to get Ruley at second, McGrath scoring, and Ruley also plated on Ankrum's wild throw to third.

In the third with one down Mutryn singled and was forced at second by Moore. McGrath bobbled Mangan's fly to right center, and Moore scored, Mangan going to third.

Findlay added a run in the seventh on a single by Kraus followed by three fielder's choices which proved the wrong choice.

* * *

The last Oiler run came in the eighth on another combination of poor plays by the Braves. Antel walked, stole second when Mutryn dropped a pitch, went to third as Brenner was safe on Siegbert's error, and scored on a fly by Kraus.

* * *

Patterson, on the mound for the Braves, was the victim of the four errors chalked against his teammates Pat allowed eight hits, fanned seven and walked five.

GAME AT 7 P. M.

First game of tonight's double header between the Mansfield Braves and Tiffin Mud Hens, at the Fairground is scheduled for 7 o'clock. Father and Son night will be observed in a double header Saturday night between the Braves and Lima, with a prize of a membership season ticket going to the father having the most sons under 16 years of age at the game. Ray Gets Jitters On Bout

Worryin' Johnny Needs Most Training Work.

By SID FEDER

POMPTON LAKES, N. J.—(AP)—The big question up here in the open-air nuthouse that passes for Billy Conn's training camp isn't whether Billy will be right for Joe Louis, but whether Manager Johnny Ray is going to make it.

At his calmest, worryin' Johnny is about as sedate as a plate full of jumping beans on the loose. But at the current rate of Conn's wear and tear on his nerves, it is doubtful that the little guy who brought "Junior" up to his heavyweight championship match is going to be able to tand up by next Wednesday night, much less work in Billy's corner.

* * *

The Pittsburgh pretty boy is near the peak of his conditioning, weighs just under 180 pounds and is one of the most confident clouters ever to come up to the Bomber.

* * *

A gagster of the old school, he has Johnny riding on a merry-go-round. Natives hereabouts in the Ramapo hills are setting their watches by the fighter and his manager. There's a row between 'em every hour on the hour.

For instance, Johnny came out of the challenger's cottage the other noon, looking for Conn. He happened to glance upward, and there, taking a sunbath, was Billy, balanced carelessly on the edge of the gabled roof—a million dollars worth of fighter who could have become a hospital case if a breeze blew at him.

"Get down offa there," Johnny howled. "Do you wanna fall and get hurt?"

* * *

"If you want me, come up and get me," Conn shouted back. "You can get up the same way I did—shinny up the rainpipe."

* * *

Johnny staggered off, moaning that a gate which may come within shouting distance of a half-million dollars next week in the Polo Grounds was lying haphazardly on the edge of 20 feet of space.

"That Billy," he groaned, is the worst, dirtiest little bum I ever saw. If it wasn't for the fight I'd lick him myself."

Zeke's Gone Away, Millers Trimmed

Loquacious Zeke Bonura swapped his bat for an army gun a few days ago and the Minneapolis Millers haven't been the same since.

The slugging, peppery first baseman left last week-end and Manager Tom Sheehan's club since has slid from first place to third and is wallowing in a four-game losing streak.

* * *

The usual hard-hitting Millers have looked like anything but sluggers the last two nights against the sterling hurling of the Columbus Redbirds. Johnny Grodzicki set them down with three hits Monday night and Henry Brecheen yielded only six last night as Minneapolis fell again, 2 to 1.

* * *

Kansas City took over second place a half game behind pacesetting Columbus with a 4 to 1 victory over Indianapolis.

Tex Hughson turned in his fifth straight mound victory, a five-hitter giving Louisville a 4 to 0 decision over Milwaukee. Vedie Himsl cut Toledo down with eight hits to give St. Paul a 4 to 2 victory.

Cleveland Scrapper Seeks Bout With Champion Joe

DES MOINES, Ia. —(INS)— Despite a broken hand, which temporarily put him out of competition, Lem Franklin, lanky Cleveland, O., colored fighter, today is favored among midwest fight fans as the most likely to usurp Joe Louis' heavyweight crown when and if the time comes for a change.

Franklin is a "plumb mean boy" in the ring, according to his father "Pops" Franklin, who doubles as Lem's manager and adviser. His meanness has manifested itself in fights with such heavies as Abe Simon, Lee Savold, Willie Reddish, Eddie Blunt, Carl Vinciquerra, Tony Musto, Perk Daniels and Selman Martin, all of whom he lists among his 25 victims in his 28 professional fights.

* * *

"Pops" points out that 21 of Lem's wins were by kayoes. Before starting to fight for pay, Lem won 27 amateur fights by knockouts.

* * *

Lem, with the same sort of modesty that has characterized 14 or 15 other heavyweights in recent years, believes Joe Louis is made to order for the Franklin fists.

"I'd sure like to fight Louis," he said. "I think I can outsock Joe."

"Pops" is optimistic enough to think the fight will be arranged soon. "I wouldn't say Louis is trying to duck him," the elder Franklin said. "It's a business proposition with him. When the public demands a fight between Lem and Joe, there'll be one."

* * *

As his record indicates, Franklin packs a hard right and has come to be highly regarded among critics. Two recent listings placed him fourth among the heavies, with only Billy Conn and Arturo Godoy between him and the head man.

* * *

Lem owes his present prominence to the government's athletic program for Civilian Conservation Corps youth. He went to a CCC camp seven years ago, when he was 16.

"The boy was just playing around in the streets so I sent him to the camp," his dad said. While he was in the camp Lem whipped all comers and began to think about a fighting career. He weighed 190.

Franklin was born in Mobile, Ala., and moved with his family while a baby to Pennsylvania and later to Cleveland. He is a high school graduate, talks quietly and intelligently, shoots pool with his dad and says he "loves to bowl."

Open Survivors Hit 2nd Round

Soggy Layout Faces Petticoat Putters.

By FRITZ HOWELL

CINCINNATI — (AP) — Having brushed aside rather punk opposition in one-sided opening matches, 16 survivors went into second round play today over Cincinnati Country club's soggy layout to determine the eight quarter-finalists in the 12th annual women's Western Open golf championship.

* * *

Opposition for the favorites was made of sterner stuff for today's battles, and the victory margins were not expected to run as high as they did yesterday when 12 of the 16 matches were decided by scores of 5 and 3 or worse.

On tap in the second round were these matches:

Patty Berg, Minneapolis professional, vs. Jeanne Cline, 17-year-old Bloomington, Ill., miss who reached the semi-finals two years ago.

Dolly Schildmiller, two-time Cincinnati champion, vs. Georgia Tainter, Western Junior queen from Fargo, N. D.

Betty Jameson, National Amateur queen from San Antonio, Tex., vs. Eleanor Dudley, stocky Chicago star.

Dorothy Gardner, Steubenville, O., beauty queen, vs. Betty Jane Haemerle, 15-year-old St. Louis schoolgirl.

Professional Helen Dettweiler of Washington, D. C., 1939 champion, vs. Virginia Guilfoil of Buffalo, N. Y., twice winner of the Mason-Dixon classic.

Mrs. James D. Platt, jr., of Dayton, the Ohio medal play champion, vs. Mrs. Ralph Goodwin of Cincinnati.

Mary Agnes Wall of Menominee, Mich., finalist in the recent Trans-Mississippi tourney, vs. Sue Land, youthful Richmond, Ind., player.

Mrs. Burt Weil of Cincinnati, three-time Buckeye state champion, vs. Mrs. Douglas Hill, another Cincinnatian.

SEEKS DEFERMENT

CHICAGO—(UP)—John Dungan Rigney, Chicago White Sox pitcher, hoped today that a 60-day draft deferment granted by his local board would be upheld by national selective service officials at Washington.

Injuries are fewer among college athletes than any other group, according to Dr. Lewellyn Cole, director of the student health department at the University of Wisconsin. The collegians are better trained, he said.

Hunting Changes Proposed

Season on Deer and Hen Pheasants Asked.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Proposals for a brief open season on deer in Ohio and a change in present laws to permit shooting of hen pheasants as well as cock birds were considered by the state conservation commission today as it met to set hunting season dates and bag limits for the year.

* * *

The suggestion that Ohio hunters be allowed to shoot deer was made by Floyd Swiger, Piketon farmer and a district supervisor of the state commission.

* * *

"It would be better for the state to have a brief open season on deer than to pay farmers for damage to land and crops which they cause," Swiger said as he estimated that Scioto county alone had more than 4,500 deer, which "sportsmen and farmers would welcome the opportunity to shoot."

Scioto county is the site of the 3,500 Roosevelt game preserve where deer are reared under state protection.

* * *

Another district supervisor, Lester Fink, of Arlington, O., urged the board to permit hunters to shoot hen pheasants as well as cock birds because they "have become so numerous in Hancock county that farmers consider them a pest."

* * *

Five of the state's seven district representatives opposed re-establishment of the "staggered" hunting season for pheasants, while a' agreed that present game seasons and bag limits in the state are "generally satisfactory."

Long Bars Lead League

Three Extra-Hole Tilts Played in 'A' Loop.

Long Bar scored a 4 to 1 victory over Greystone Nite Club last evening at Possum Run to take the lead in the News-Journal "A" golf league.

Snyder, No. 4 shooter, paced the Long Bars with a 37, tying the best medal for the day in the league. Other 37 shooters were Kleshinski and Mayer.

* * *

Andregg's Billiards edged into second place with a 3 to 2 win over Yuncker Sports, Cairns' Hardware won from Richland Printing 3 to 2, and Barnes and Schmid took a 3 to 2 victory over Sloan's Drugs.

Three extra-hole matches marked league play with all three going to the 11th green. In the overtime tilts Pete Linster won from Al Kushin. Al Hager defeated Pete Zeides, and John Carr edged Carl Wiseman.

CRAIG WOOD ENTERS MAHONING VALLEY

GIRARD, O.—(AP)—The name of Craig Wood, newly-crowned U. S. Open champion, was added today to the roster of par busters who will compete in the $5,000 72-hole Mahoning Valley Open golf tournament here Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Wood advised the tournament management from his Mamaroneck, N. Y., home club that he would come here to launch his tour of the entire summer golf circuit. He is expected to test the course today.

There'll be plenty of competition for him—including Ben Hogan, the country's leading money winner this year, who will be among the field of 200 professionals and amateurs.

THEATERS

Gob Comedy.

Harold Lloyd's first venture into the motion picture production field, "A Girl, a Guy and a Gob," showing at the Ohio is as hilarious a film as fans of the erstwhile screen comedian would expect it to be. George Murphy plays the happy-go-lucky sailor, Lucille Ball is cast as his sweetheart and Edmond O'Brien has the part of her super-efficient boss. Lloyd debunks the stuffed shirt and gives new twists to the romantic triangle when the boss falls in love with the girl himself. Franklin Pangborn and Mady Correll are in the cast.

Refugee Flight.

"So Ends Our Night," a gripping story of political refugees who shuttled across the continent in order to triumph over oppression is showing at the Madison with a stellar quartet at the top of the cast. Margaret Sullavan, Fredric March, Glenn Ford and Frances Dee carry the leads in this drama adapted from Erich Maria Remarque's serial "Flotsam," that appeared in Collier's magazine. Spectacular sets including the Prater, "Coney Island of Vienna," and Alpine sequences feature the production that moves all over Europe. "Thieves Fall Out," a comedy with Eddie Albert is the second attraction.

Conrad Thriller.

Fredric March and Betty Field in Joseph Conrad's "Victory," heads the film program playing at the Ritz. Sir Cedric Hardwicke is in the cast. Blacked-out London is the locale for the second feature "Scotland Yard." presenting a mystery that challenged the world's famous detective system. Henry Wilcoxon gives the law a chase as a bank robber who "steals" a bank executive's face through plastic surgery, wins the banker's wife, and defies apprehension generally. John Loder and Nancy Kelly are in the cast.

Crop Dusters.

"Give Us Wings," opening Thursday at the Park is the first production to deal with the topical subject of aerial crop-dusting. With a cast headed by the "Dead End Kids" the film follows the adventures of a group of would-be young fliers whose eagerness to take to the air before becoming licensed pilots leads them to the hazardous crop-dusting profession. Billy Halop, Bobby Jordan and Anne Gwynne play the leads. Roy Rogers' "The Border Legion," is the second attraction.

Sportsmen to Hear Report

Charles Mill Lake Club Plans Friday Meeting.

Charles Mill Lake Sportsmen's club, which already boasts a membership of 400, will meet Friday at 7:30 p. m. in the municipal court room to hear the latest report on the proposed opening of the north end of the lake for fishing.

Carl Breyman, club president, said today more than 6,000 signatures were obtained on petitions circulated by the club asking for the opening of the area.

* * *

"We could have gotten that many more from Richland and Ashland county sportsmen if we had had time to make the effort," Breyman asserted, "but time limited our activity to the mere placing of the petitions in places where fishermen could find them.

* * *

"It's too late now to do anything more about the petitions as the conservation commission is to decide this week whether or not to go through with its originally announced intention of opening the lake."

Breyman indicated a further drive for members would be undertaken by the organization soon. It already has had the most rapid growth of any new group started in this vicinity in the memory of Richland sportsmen.

PEGS PARTNER'S PILL, LOSES GROUND

ARKANSAS CITY, Kas.—(AP)—Clyde Boggs drove his tee shot 205 yards.

Then Bob Brown, next up, swatted one. It struck Boggs' ball, pushing it ahead 15 or 20 feet. Bob's drive stopped dead.

BULL AND PITHER SAME THING TO BULLFIGHTER

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— It may not be very flattering to pitchers, but Rodolfo Gaona, great Mexican bullfighter, seems some similarity to his tacts in the ring and a baseball batter at the home plate.

"Every bull is different, every pitcher is different," he says. "They must be hit or thrust at differently."

In his active career Gaona killed 2,000 bulls. He has never faced a pitcher.

SHARES RENEW UPWARD TREND ON MART TODAY

Administration Stand Against Strikes Well Received By Wall Street.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Shares continued upward today under the impetus of the previous session. Fractional gains were held toward the second hour although the trading rate was moderate.

The administration's firm stand against defense industry strikes and the British offensive in Syria were well received by market operators.

Followers of utilities shares noted an industrial survey indicating power supplies of defense plants could be progressively stepped up as non-defense manufacturing slowed down.

Holders of oil shares considered Secretary Ickes' statement that an oil shortage would force the rationing in the east of gasoline and perhaps, of oil.

Of special interest to investors was President Roosevelt's promise that any defense plant taken over and operated by the army would be returned to private management as soon as possible.

PUTS $500,000 MORE IN PLANT

Westinghouse To Build Two Additions, Buys 23 More Real Estate Parcels.

the major part of the $1,500,000 program started more than a year ago. Also constructed in the program as an industrial bridge connecting the enameling plant with the main Westinghouse building at Fourth and Wayne streets.

The new parking lot, covering 6.2 acres, will have space for nearly 1,000 cars. With present parking space, there will be facilities for parking 1,300 automobiles adjacent to the plant, VanDerau said.

Residences and other buildings on the 23 properties to be converted into parking lots will be razed, he added. Most of them are in the area from Wayne street east to Purdy street and between East Fourth and East Fifth streets.

Present enameling facilities at the vitreous plant will be increased by the installation of a new furnace to supplement three now in operation. Space will be provided for the addition of a fifth furnace if it is needed, officials said. Plans also call for a new pickling machine, spray booths, and drying ovens in the enameling plant.

The $75,000 expenditure on the "G" building will include the addition of two floors to the structure adjacent to the Pennsylvania railroad which formerly was used as a high crane bay.

Decision to purchase additional land for parking space was reached after a survey of traffic conditions in the vicinity of the Westinghouse plant, VanDerau said. The survey showed there were 865 cars parked in lots and in the street near the plant during the first daily shift and 827 during the second shift.

"Westinghouse appreciated that lack of parking facilities resulted in an unfavorable situation as far as our employes, the city, and residents of this vicinity were concerned," VanDerau said. "Driveways often were blocked, and the situation has been distressing for property owners in the area in the radius of several blocks from the plant. Purchase of the additional parking space has been authorized in order to co-operate with the city police traffic department in its efforts to relieve traffic congestion, to provide sufficient parking facilities for employes, and to spare residents of the area from inconvenience."

FIRE HITS FARM

Ohio Wesleyan Buildings Are Destroyed Near Galion.

GALION — Fire swept five buildings on the Ohio Wesleyan university's farm, three and a half miles northwest of here last night.

Clyde Winch, for 15 years tenant on the farm, said the cattle barn, tool shed, sheep barn, brooderhouse, chicken coop and small tool shed were destroyed.

He estimated the building loss at $4,000 and added another $3,000 loss in machinery which he said was partly covered by insurance.

Neighbors saw flames blazing from the tool shed at 11:50 p. m. and called the Crestline fire department which saved a large barn which had ignited.

HURT IN FALL

GALION — Word came to Galion, Tuesday, that William F. Skahill of Toledo, former Galion resident, suffered leg and back injuries when he fell 70 feet from a scaffolding at the Textileather corporation, Sunday. He was sitting on the scaffolding painting a water tower when a supporting rope broke.

GALION SCHOOL HEAD ISSUES YEAR'S REPORT

Tells Board 4½ Per Cent of 1,700 Were Failures For New Low Record.

GALION—With schools in Galion closing last week for the summer vacation, it was stated by O. E. Hill, superintendent, in his regular report at the June meeting of the board of education, Tuesday night, that there were only 4½ per cent failures out of the 1700 students this year. The normal number of failures is five per cent, he said.

In presenting the program of studies for 1941-42 which has been placed in the hands of all students from the sixth grade to the 12th, it was noted that in Senior high school the study of Spanish has been offered instead of first year German.

Supt. Hill was requested by the board to ask the civil service commission to hold an examination for a janitor to go to work Aug. 15 or around that time at the South school. He was also authorized to advertise for bids for coal for the year, bids to be received July 1.

Galion's first teacher to leave for a year's military training will be Robert Brown, athletic coach. The board granted him a leave of absence for one year for this purpose.

Resignations of three teachers, Charles Aplas, vocational coordinator, Miriam Reynolds, elementary teacher, and Florence Stevens, Junior High home economics instructor, were accepted by the board.

Purchase of a lawn mower, from Otto Snider, was made by the board. Bids were also received for the purchase of a truck, but no decision was made by the board.

After some discussion, it was decided by the group to further study the appointment of an advisory committee of parents and teachers for the purpose of determining curriculum development of the schools.

The financial report given by the clerk, Harry Sanderlin, showed the schools to have a balance on June 1, of $12,621.53.

Supervised playground activities at Heise park will begin Monday, it was announced. All school buildings have been approved by the inspector, F. F. Gorsuch.

The Secret of the Marshbanks + + +

By Kathleen Norris

(Copyright, 1941)

CHAPTER XI

And when she found herself alone in the kitchen, she began to feel a certain shame and discomfort in the part she was playing in their secret. She felt ashamed for them and for herself.

When the kitchen clock said quarter to four, she went back to the barn. Fran and Kelly were still standing at the window looking out at the rain that was mingling now with an early dusk.

It was raining steadily again when they went out to the open car. Fran had refused Kelly's suggestion that they telephone for a taxi. She had said, "We're late now! We'll be home in 20 minutes; let's make a dash for it."

The women were bundled into snug raincoats with bandannas tied over their heads. They packed themselves into the wide seat and raised an umbrella close over them. A quarter of a mile down the hill there was a bad turn and Cherry felt the horrible sensation of wheels skidding, and instantly they were wedged in a ditch with the engine's nose stuck into a dripping bank.

When repeated efforts had proved that the car would not move with its load, Cherry and Fran got out and stood still, laughing philosophically under their umbrella.

"Don't hurry. I'm just as good as divorced now," Fran's voice with its poignant note of laughter and tears said calmly.

"This'll only take a minute," Kelly struggled gallantly for fully ten minutes, his arms wrenching at the steering wheel, his face red. "Damn it!" he muttered under his breath, as the wheels spun around uselessly in a deepening groove of soft, wet earth.

"We'd better go back, I think, and telephone for a taxi," Fran suggested.

"Lord, I'm sorry about this," the man said apologetcally. "The old bus never let me down before."

* * *

Their arms linked, slipping and laughing and pulling one another back to balance, they started up the road. It was a hard pull, and when they reached the house it was with a sort of hysteria of relief that the women shed their outer garments and crouched close to the revived fire. Delicious warmth began to creep through their shaking bones; Kelly lighted lamps, mixed them a hot drink that started the blood moving again. The clock tinged a brisk five.

Sausalito could supply no taxi but San Francisco obligingly offered to send one.

While they waited Cherry telephoned Emma; she had come with friends to Sausalito; they were delayed by the storm; they would be home in an hour; please tell Mrs. Porter that she was sorry. Emma answered that the old lady had felt ill after luncheon and was in bed, so that Cherry need not hurry. This tremendously relieved Cherry's mind.

Fran was restless and uneasy and Kelly miserably aware of it. His happy day was having the worst possible conclusion; he had long exhausted apology and encouragement, and could only settle down with his guests at the fire and make the best of a bad job.

It seemed a long, long time before the honk of a taxi was heard outside. Fran insisted that Kelly should not come with them; they said hurried good nights and were off.

"Cherry," Fran said then, calling her by her name for the first time, "will you do me a great favor?"

"Of course," Cherry said with a slightly quickened beat at her heart and a puzzled look.

"I want you to come home with me. It's perfectly obvious," Fran explained, "that we've been caught in the rain together. I want my husband to know that you were with me."

Cherry was strangely stirred. Fran, the remote and proud, had made her the recipient of her confidence, or at least part of it. She said that she would gladly go home with Fran before going on to her own destination.

* * *

Fran did not pursue the subject further, and at 6 o'clock they entered the front door of the Marshbanks house. Molly and Martin, maid and butler, came forward immediately, and Fran asked anxiously if Judge Marshbanks was at home. No, not yet? Cherry felt the relief in her voice. Where was Rousseau?

"Right here, Madame." The chauffeur appeared and Fran drew him aside for a moment's earnest talk.

"Rousseau says Jud had to go to San Jose to court this afternoon," she then said as she and Cherry went upstairs, "and he's coming back late with Mr. Trotter. So that's all right. You poor child, you're shivering. I have to go out to dinner, but why don't you stay here and have some with Amy? The poor mouse is in bed with a cold!"

"Yes, do; yes, do!" called Amy from her room, and her first gesture of friendliness so warmed Cherry's heart that she could go to the room door and look in upon its pinkness and warmth and coziness as she explained: "I'm all wet and horrid!"

"Take a bath in my room, here; I'm dying of loneliness; all my friends are afraid," Amy said eagerly. "You've just been taking care of flu, so you're in no danger. Stay and have supper and talk. I'll lend you a hostess dress."

"I'd love it," Cherry said gladly. She was about to enter when an unexpected and unfamiliar voice behind her made her turn and find herself facing Fran and also facing a magnificently impressive older woman, a woman of perhaps seventy, who was staring at her with a surprised and unfriendly eye.

Fran had been welcoming this stranger, commenting upon her arrival a few days earlier than she had been expected from Florida, explaining her own plight. Now she introduced Cherry: "Miss Rawlings, Gran. Cherry, this is Mrs. Marshbanks, the judge's mother."

"Miss who?" demanded the old lady sharply, following Fran after a perfunctory nod to Cherry.

Cherry heard Fran murmuring in answer; the words were indistinct but her tone was conciliatory and apologetic. Suddenly the other woman's voice sounded clearly just before Fran's bedroom door closed:

"Of course I know who she is; I knew the minute I saw her! And I won't have Amy know her; I won't have her in this house!"

Cherry stood still for a moment, idly reflecting upon the bad temper of this proud, handsome old lady. At the moment it did not occur to her to attempt to give these words significance, still less to connect them in any way with her insignificant self. But they remained indelibly imprinted upon her memory, and the day came when they found their rightful place in her story.

Cherry had a reviving bath in Amy's amazing bathroom and came out to join Amy wearing an enchanting trailing creation of pale brown lace and pale blue crepe. The fat, kindly housemaid, May, who had met Cherry upon her first arrival from school, and who had later helped her buy her new outfit of coat and hats and dresses, had come into the room to find her something comfortable to wear.

Amy, during this process, was all affectionate enthusiasm and so contradicted Cherry's earlier impression of her that Cherry was bewildered by the contrast. Amy was lonely tonight; she had been ill; she was eager for companionship. So she made Cherry warmly welcome and the two girls chatted and laughed together like old and intimate friends as they discussed their supper trays.

Judge Marshbanks came into the room while Amy and Cherry were talking and seemed pleased to find them so cozy and friendly. He was tired after a long day in the San Jose court, and regretted frankly that he could not have supper with his niece and her companion.

"But Fran and I are going out to dinner and I must go and dress," he said. "So you got caught in the rain, did you, Cherry?"

"Oh, we were drowned!" Cherry said, achieving a cheerful and unalarmed tone. He was not so very angry, she thought; Fran had evidently told him what had occurred without arousing his jealousy.

"Over at Coates' place, eh?"

"Yes; he has a darling studio looking out over the water!" To her great satisfaction the judge seemed more interested in her than in what she was saying.

"Things going pretty well over at the Porter house?"

"They've both been sick, you know, Mrs. Porter and—and Emma." She flushed brightly on the last word; it seemed disloyal still to call her no more than that.

* * *

But evidently he saw nothing amiss. He told her that she looked very nice in that thing of Amy's, and that Rousseau was taking Fran and him to the dinner and would then come back and wait for Cherry.

"Oh, I can walk! Only two blocks and it's stopped raining," she protested. But he would not hear of it. Rousseau was to call for them after their dinner party at half past ten; he would be on service anyway.

"Well, be good. Come and see us again, Cherry," the judge said, and when he was gone the girls fell to eager talk again.

"What did you think of my grandmother?" Amy presently asked, laughing. "What was she scolding about?"

"I don't know. I just heard her say that she wouldn't put up with something or somebody. She seemed cross!"

"She's always like that. She just got home from Palm Beach this morning, and you'd think she'd be tired. Luckily, Fran likes her. But she certainly rides Uncle Jud. Say, tell me," Amy said, narrowing her eyes as she looked at Cherry, "how do you like Kelly Coates?"

"I like him, don't you?" Cherry returned guardedly.

"I don't know him very well. He's about thirty-one really," Amy said indifferently. "But he's cracked about Fran!"

"I should think a lot of men would be."

"Well, I guess a lot are. But I'll bet she likes Kelly, too. How was it over there at his place? Did he and Fran hold hands and keep roaming off together?"

Cherry had to laugh at the tone and at Amy's mischevious expression. But she was quite serious as she said, "I don't think she'd deliberately do anything that would make your uncle jealous."

"Oh, he's not jealous," Amy stated comfortably. "He'd never suspect anything if she was carrying on with someone right under his nose. He's madly in love with her. They've been married only three or four years. She had a beau last year, a German baron, and he used to be hanging around here . . ."

"Maybe there's safety in numbers," Cherry put in, uncomfortable under these confidences.

"She's had millions of beaux," Amy said. ". . . Cherry, were you ever in love?"

"Well, I sort of think—I sort of thought I was." There was a heady delight in this sort of talk in the warm, softly lighted, sweet-scented room.

"I am." Cherry was relieved to have Amy launch into a detailed history of her hopeless passion for a young Italian who had given her lessons on the violin at school. It was very serious, Amy protested, when Cherry could not help laughing. She had smuggled letters to him and he had promised on his word of honor to get a divorce and come and ask her grandmother and Uncle Jud if he could marry her.

"Get a divorce! You mean he was married?" Cherry was so honestly shocked that Amy was more pleased than ever.

"Certainly he was, but he didn't love his wife. All the nice men are married."

"You oughtn't to talk that way!" Cherry protested, and Amy was happier still and went on into ramifications and embroideries innumerable. "You, with your position and your wealth and your family and everything, to fall for a married violin teacher!" Cherry said severely more than once.

"As if those things mattered!" Amy answered airily. "They don't matter at all when you have them!"

"That's the only time they do matter at all," Cherry thought. "You're the ones that value them!" But she said nothing aloud, and the evennig proved to be very pleasant. And she was driven home in state by Rousseau.

There was a light in Emma's room when she quietly climbed the stairs. Cherry went in, sat down near the bed and poured out the story of the day.

Emma listened in the convalescent's mood of weary content until Cherry came to the request from Fran that Cherry on the return trip come first to the Marshbanks house.

"Why on earth didn't she drop you here if you were dripping wet?"

"Well, we weren't quite dripping. We'd sort of dried out over at Mr. Coates' place. But she was worried for fear Judge Marshbanks would be mad at her."

"For going to have lunch with Mr. Coates?"

"They've got an awful crush on each other, Aunt Emma."

* * *

The title slipped out, Cherry's face turning red as she heard her voice saying it, and Emma's slow flush burning in her thin cheeks in answer.

"I can't help it. I think of you as 'Aunt Emma' now," Cherry said, laughing, but a little frightened.

"You can call me anything you like," Emma conceded briefly. "So Mrs. Marshbanks thinks she's in love with this painter?" she asked.

"He's certainly in love with her," Cherry answered.

"I've never met Judge Marshbank's second wife," Emma said, reflectively, "but I've seen her, and she looks like one of the women who live for that sort of thing. They're always the ones with good husbands' too."

"He didn't seem very angry. He came into Amy's room, and he was awfully nice. Amy'd had flu, and since we'd had it here, there didn't seem to be much danger of my bringing it back, and so I had supper with her. We had it on trays, and it was lots of fun!"
